Alice!

Hi to one of the greatest kids
I know! I can't explain to you how much this year has meant to me. I think it's one of the most exciting years
I had! I'm glad this year that we are as close as we are and I hope it's the same next year too! I wish you all the luck in the world with Mike! I don't really think you though! You're lucky to have such a great guy as he is! Please don't ever change and always stay as sweet as you are.

Love, Paula

P.S. Thank you for letting you made me do this!
me be the first to write in this.

P.S.S. I hope next year
I don't have the problems I have
this year HA-HA

BYE!!!

BERKLEY HIGH SCHOOL

It is the singularity of its individualism that distinguishes Berkley High School.

This individuality is manifested in a seeming paradox-- the student, alone, contemplates and considers the world he shares with others, and, as a member of this community, contributes the uniqueness of his personality.

The student, offered classes that benefit from the unity of departmental planning as well as the inspiration of creative teachers, can choose those best suited to his interests, his talents, his goals.

Involvement in sports compels the participant to fulfill his responsibility of perceiving goals
through the eyes of a team, while struggling to perfect
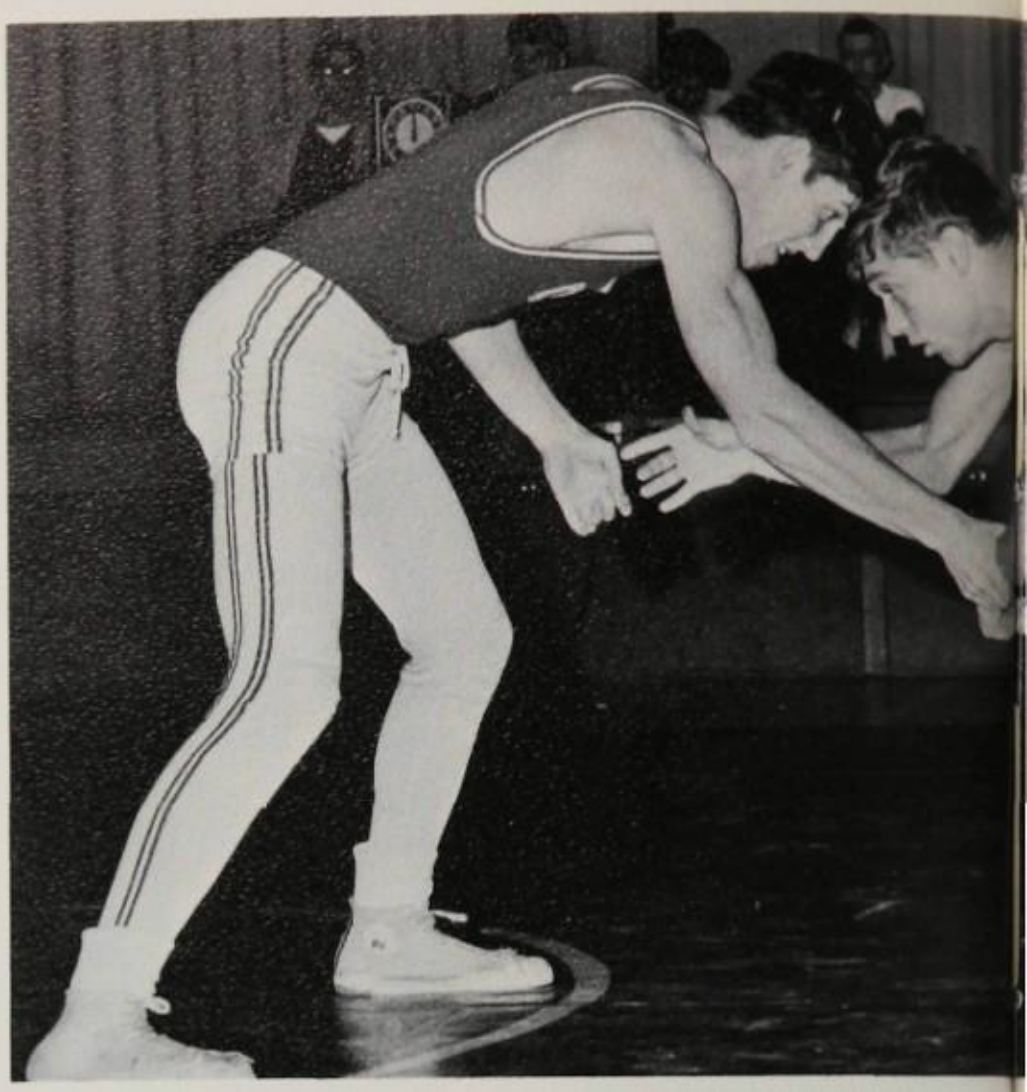
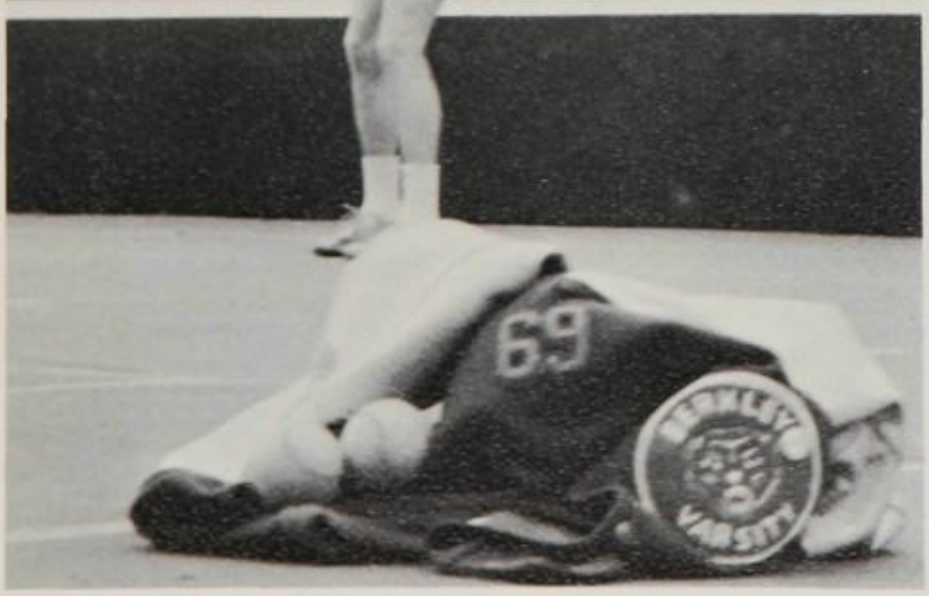
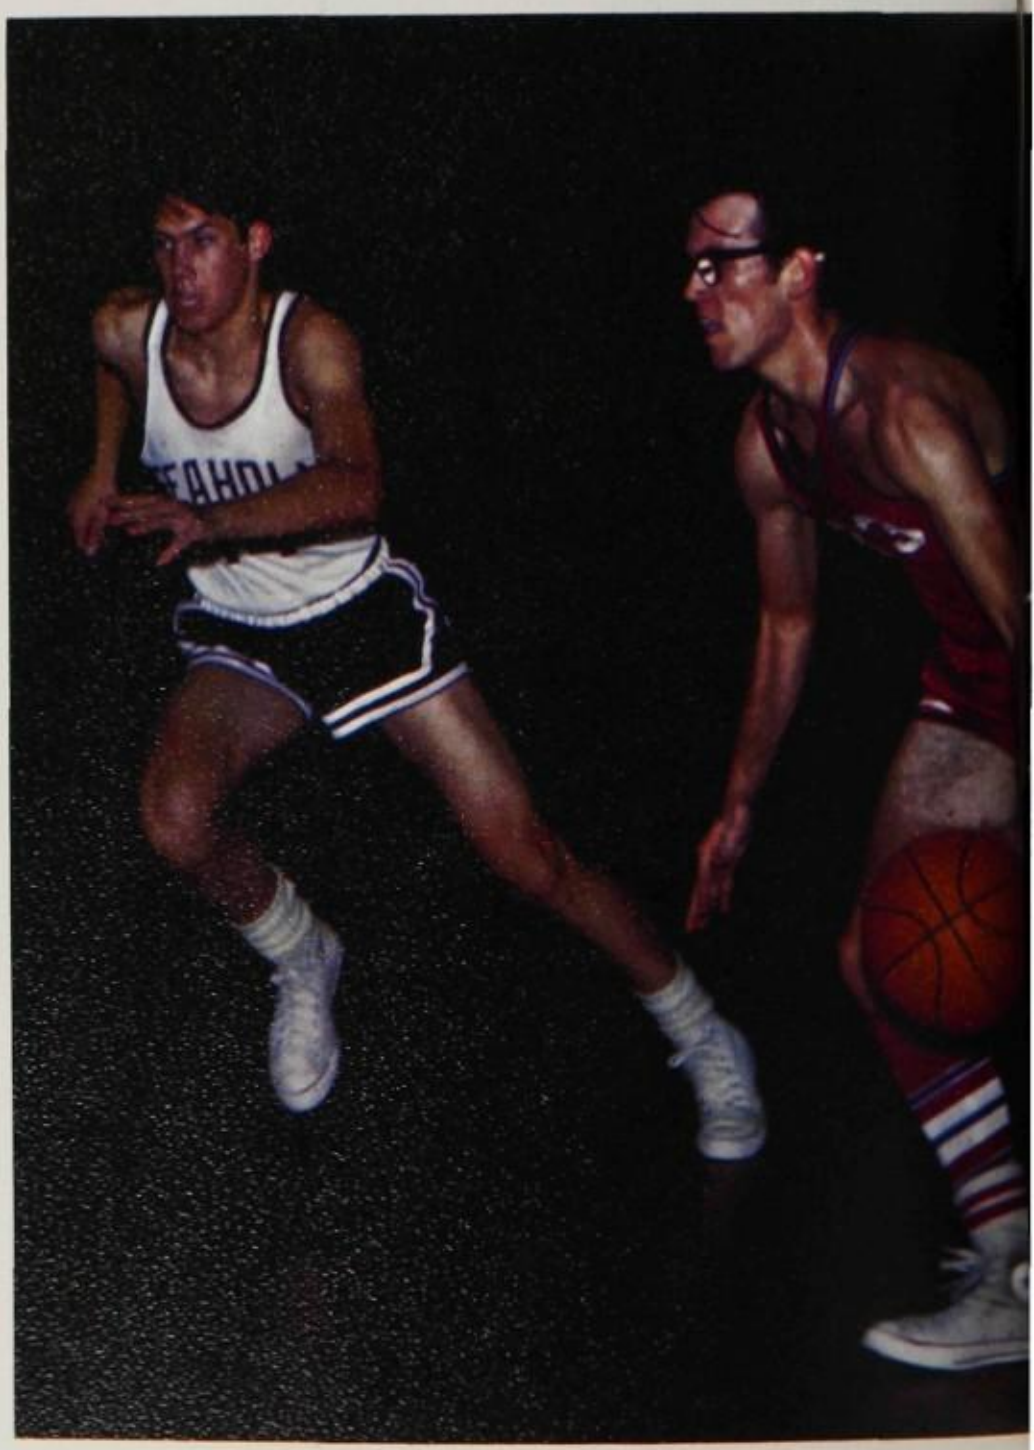
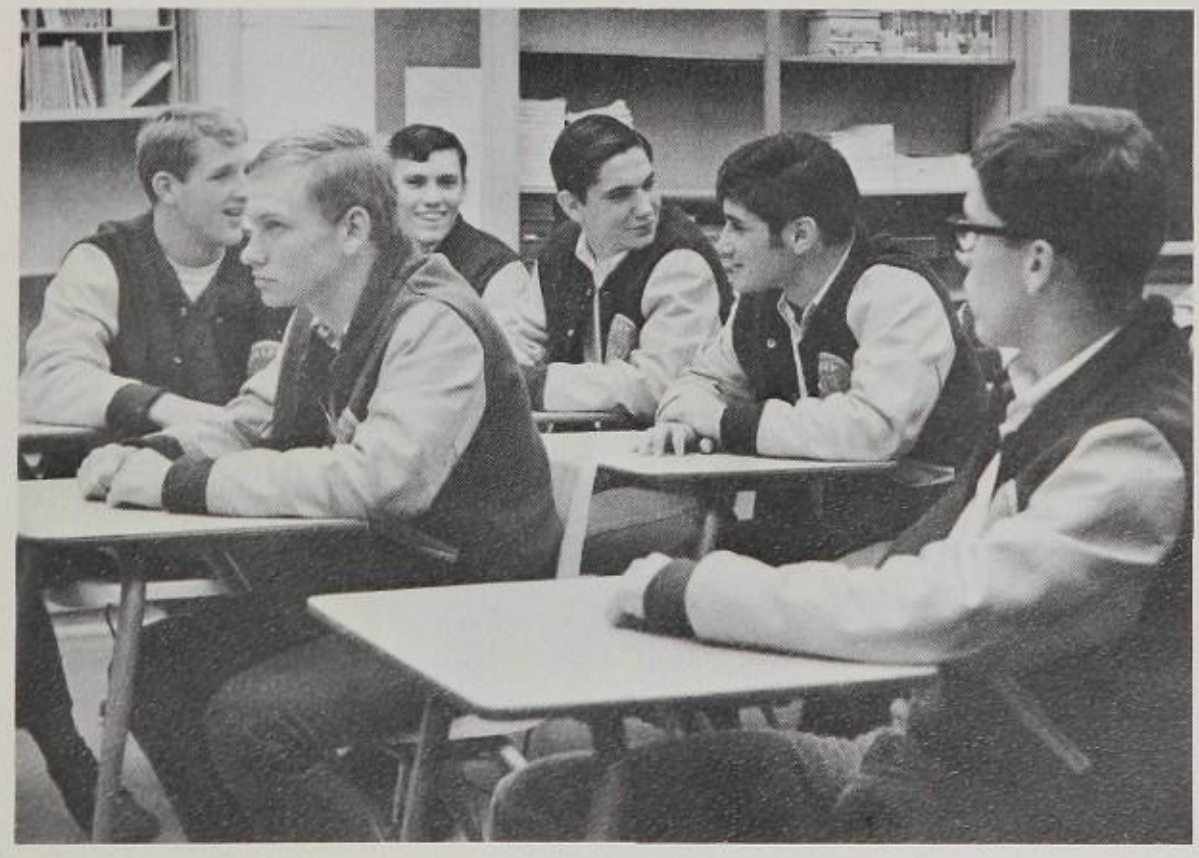
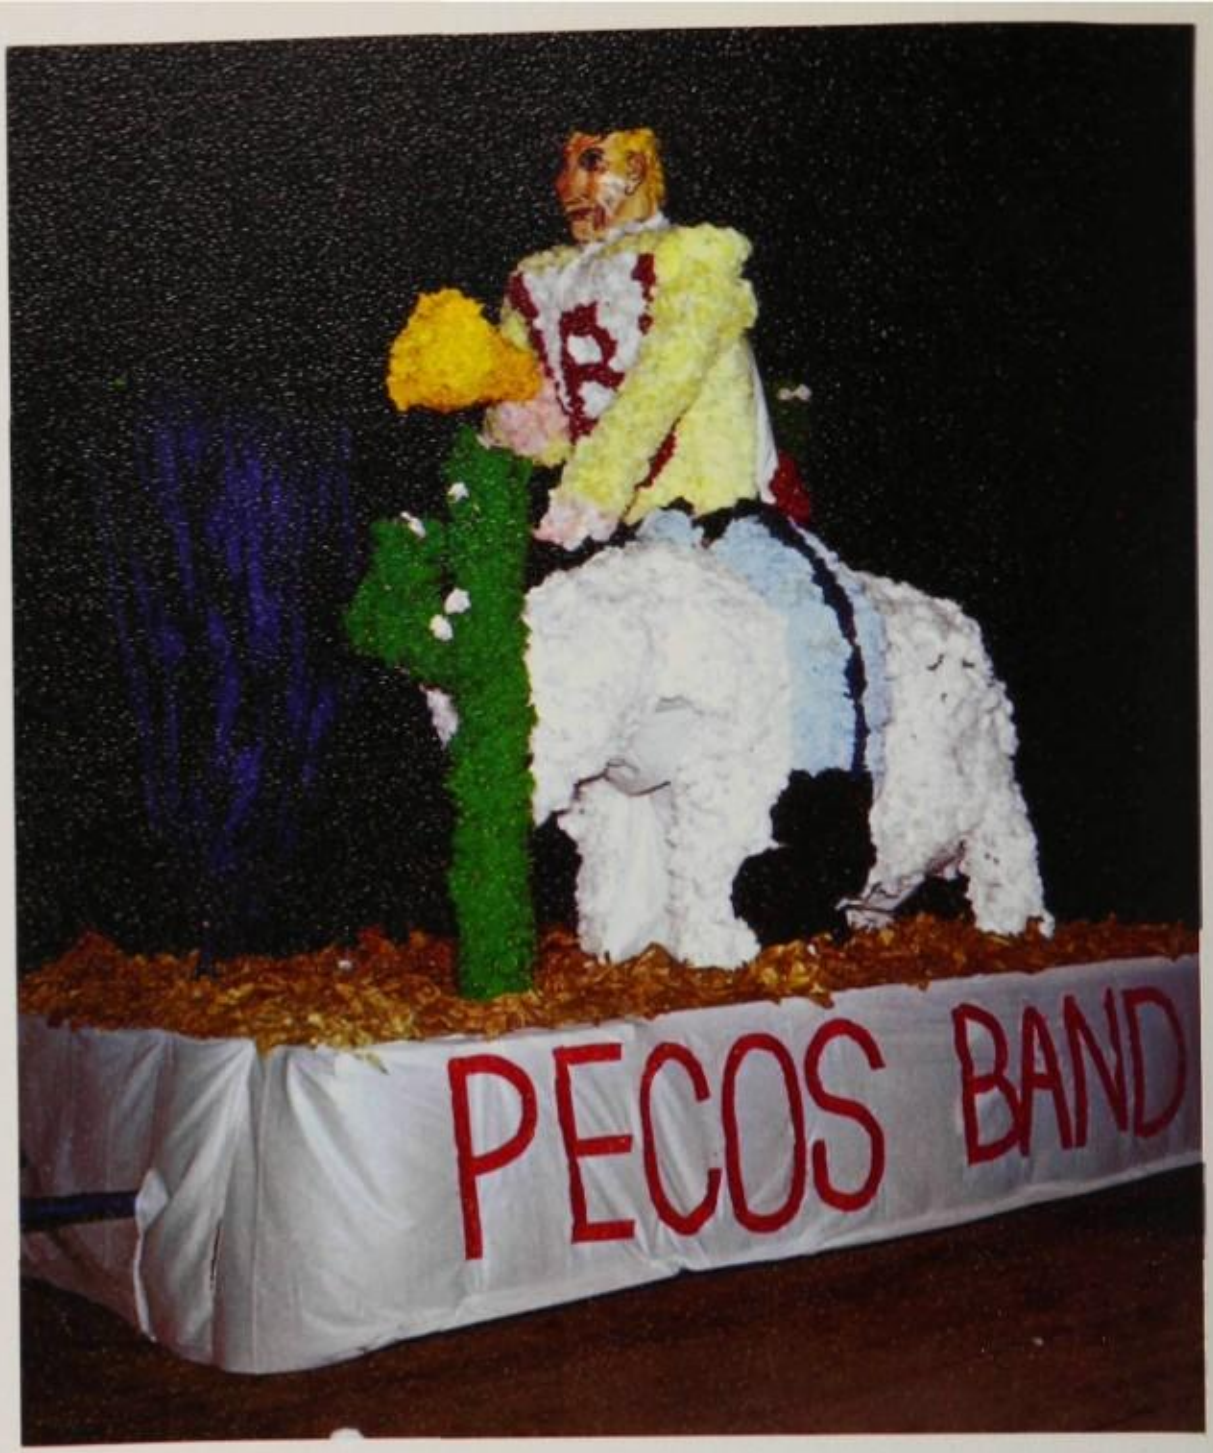
his own athletic skills.











PECOS BAND

Confronted by a diverse list of activities ranging from intramural sports to social action, the individual finds a myriad of opportunities to complete his development.
The "total person" that results is one who retains his individuality even while actively participating in the demanding world about him.

With the contribution of his efforts towards a meaningful project, the Berkley High student realizes the significance of his involvement in the community and prepares for the role he will later play as a member of society.

Board of Education Strives

As the individual must realize, the responsibility of our school board, superintendent, and assistants is tremendous. In explaining the job of the school board, Dr. Donald Roe, superintendent of schools, expressed the responsibility of preparing programs which coordinate the resources of the district with the professional out-put of our schools. The board ponders problems ranging from the fundamentals of education to the activities of Berkley High's Student Council. The job of implementing the suggestions made by the board rests upon Dr. Roe. It is his goal to maintain an atmosphere for creative thinking.

Tabulating finances is the job of Mr. Robert Hurley. He is responsible for coordinating the expenditures made by the board and the money in the treasury. It is the responsibility of Mr. Don Sheldon to select the teachers. He is given the task of interviewing teachers and reviewing their qualifications. Working together, the administration successfully maintains the standards of the Berkley school system.

Hard-Working Administrators Keep Berkley in Motion

Facing 2100 students and 119 teachers daily to make sure that everything in the school functions efficiently is the staggering task faced by Mr. Loren Disbrow, Berkley High's principal. He not only attends to the problems within the school, but also acts as a link between the school and the community. Even with all these obligations, however, Mr. Disbrow is still able to keep in contact with the students through the Forum and the Principal's Cabinet.

Mr. Irving, an assistant principal, also holds a challenging position. He is more directly in contact with the students, since he manages all disciplinary problems and supervises all of the school's clubs. Mrs. Morrison is the assistant principal in charge of the guidance department. She is concerned primarily with the faculty, directing new teacher orientation and visitation. Mr. Blomfield, Berkley's attendance director, handles many responsibilities dealing with pre-arranged absences and excusing students from school. He must also cope with the problems of truancy and of dropout students.

Berkley's secretaries attend to a variety of jobs. Mrs. Hollenbeck, Mrs. Hoornstra, Mrs. Davis, and Mrs. Gaylord are personal secretaries to Mr. Disbrow, Mr. Irving, Mr. Blomfield, and Mrs. Morrison, respectively. They keep track of their appointments and meetings. The jobs of the other secretaries range from running the bookstore to accounting.

Guide Them through Berkley

"I want to get out of a class." "Something has been bothering me." "To what college should I apply?" "I'm getting bad grades in one of my classes." All these are but a few of the comments directed daily towards members of the BHS counseling staff. These individuals act as intermediaries between the school and the various facets of school life. The counselor not only advises the student as to which courses to pursue but also acts as the student's personal confidant. In addition, counselors guide students in the selection of colleges and trade schools. They encourage higher education by giving applications and recommendations. For underclassmen in particular, counselors administer various aptitude tests.

This year many innovations have been made in the department. For the first time at Berkley High School, differential aptitude tests are being administered to all junior classmen. These tests give a profile of the abilities of the individual. A follow-up study on the high school graduate is being put into practice, which reveals the accomplishments of all June graduates. This study will result in a permanent file of student success after high school.

B.H.S. students whose names begin with A through C have noticed the addition of Miss Alexandra Atwood to the counseling department. She received both her Bachelor's and Master's degree at the University of Michigan.

Behind the Scene Workers

Deserve Gratitude

Berkley High without its kitchen staff? Impossible! Who else would faithfully sell donuts and milk to hungry students at 7:30 in the morning? Later, at lunchtime, Berkley students are offered a wide variety of snacks ranging from ice cream to carmel corn to supplement a sandwich brought from home. If prefered, well prepared hot lunches are also available. The kitchen staff not only cooks the meals, but also cleans up after our students and maintains a clean, neat kitchen. Without question, Berkley could not function without Mrs. Margaret Malburg and the cooks.

And what would happen to Berkley without its maintenance staff? There are always repairs around the halls and classrooms of Berkley to which the custodians attend daily. Besides fixing leaky water fountains and broken windows, the maintenance staff also takes care of the school grounds and cleans up after the school day has ended. The maintenance staff, under the direction of Mr. James Dewey, keeps the school in excellent condition all year round.

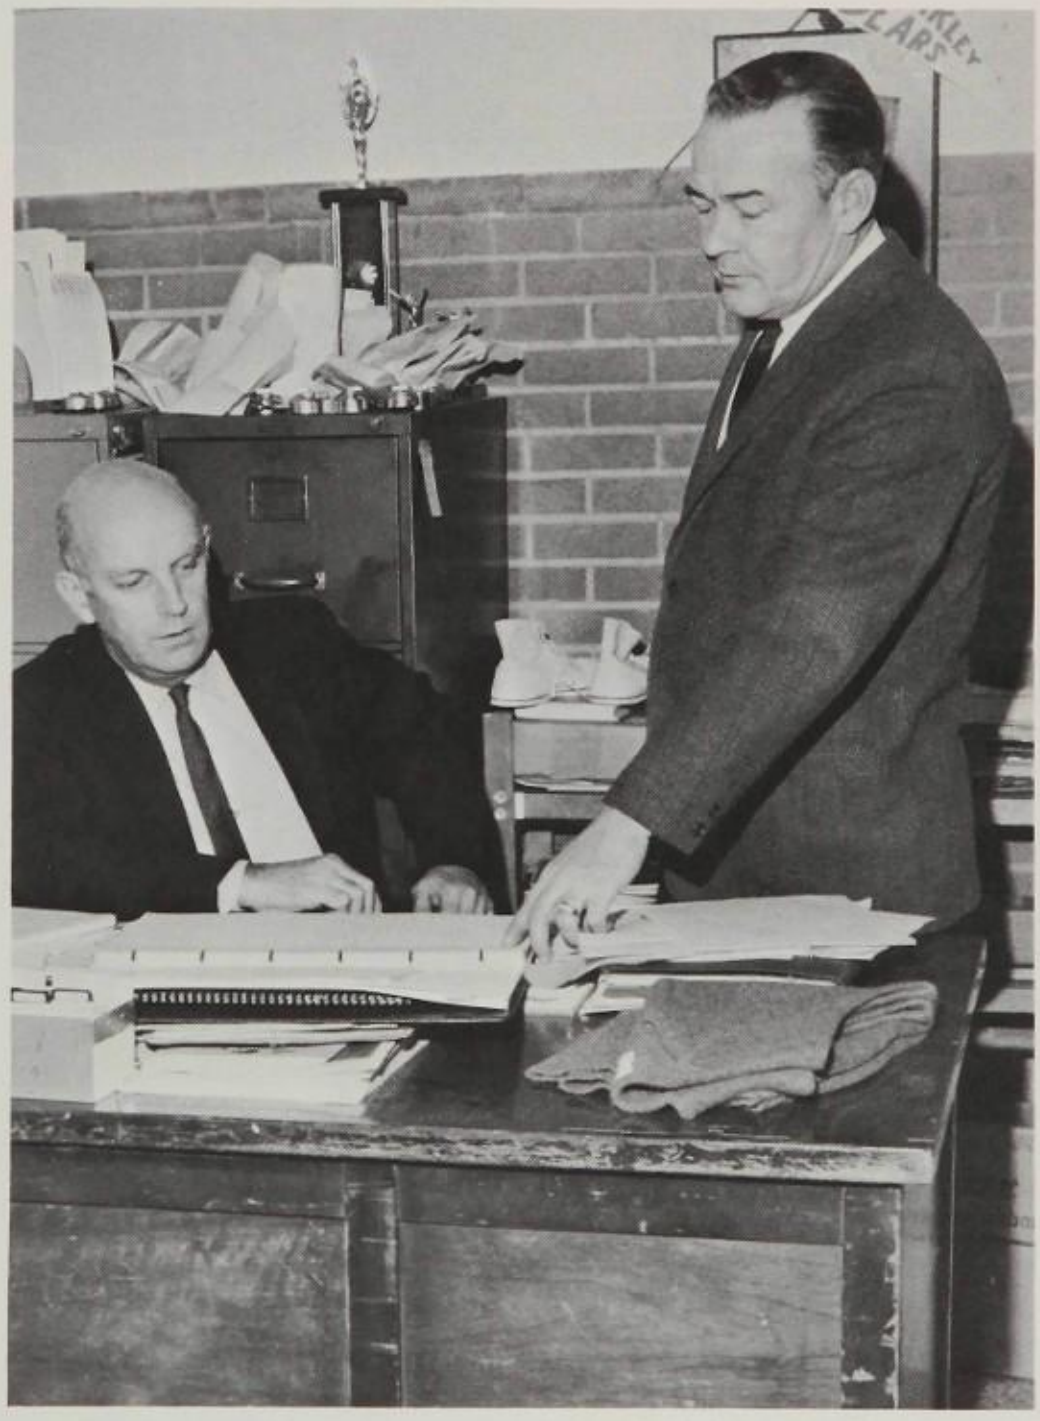
BELOW: Checking the full school calendar, Mr. LaneRamsdell, athletic director and Mr. William Gillespie, Booster Club President, schedule up-coming Booster Club functions.

Various Organizations Back Student Projects

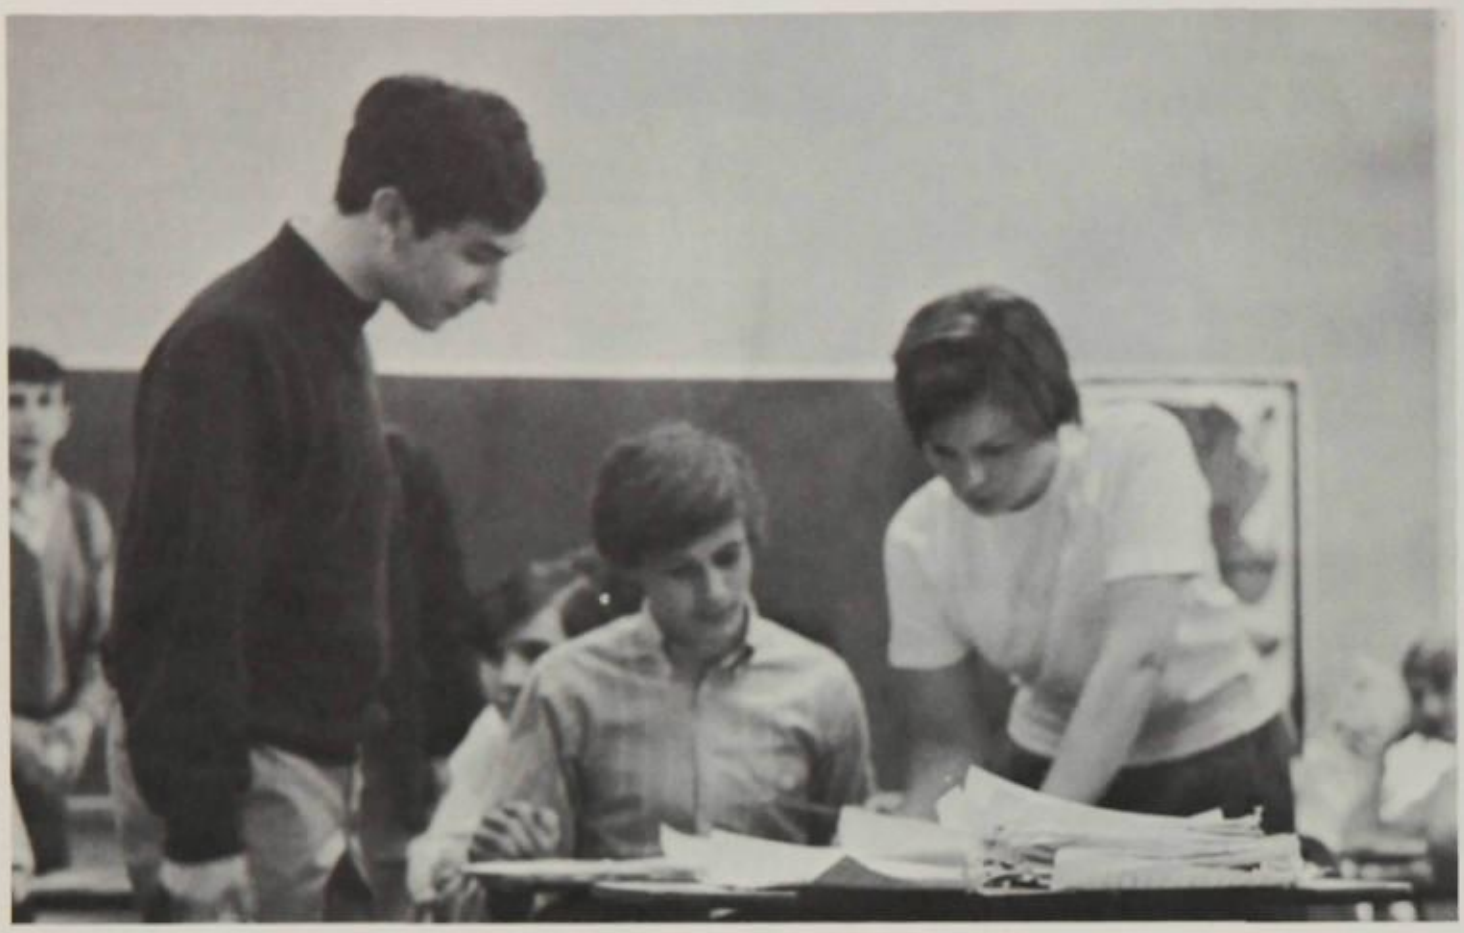
Whether one is seeking material for a research paper, some obscure book, or a break in the day's routine, the answer can be found within the confines of the Berkley High School library. The student may procure literature ranging from back issues of Newsweek to the Shakespearean tragedies and current best-sellers. If he is unable to locate the information he needs, the librarians, Miss Marilyn Sarver and Miss Sondra Byam are readily available to aid him in finding whatever material he may need.

Berkley students also have the support of several clubs which are organized to promote school spirit. The Parent-Teacher-Student Association, of which Mrs. Jo Fargo is president, provides a means through which the parents can become acquainted with the school, its policies, and its teachers.

The advancement of sports at Berkley is the primary concern of the Booster Club, headed by Mr. William Gillespie. In addition to sponsoring events such as the Sportsmen's Banquets, the Booster Club finances many other projects. Each year three outstanding athletes receive a hundred dollar award for which the Booster Club is responsible. The teams and players receive trophies and see various films, and the cheerleaders are able to go to camp during summer vacation due to the support of this organization. As one of their current projects, the members of the Booster Club are attempting to make it possible for players to receive permanent trophies.



Academics



Sophs, Juniors Explore World of Poetry, Prose, and Plays

The key word in the English department this year is innovation. Underclass English students are placed in one of three class levels–phase six, regular, or honors, according to their reading ability. Previous stress on grammar has been replaced by literature studies.

Phase six classes stress reading improvement by using books having a high range of interest, but a lower reading level. Workbooks and student research supplement the books that are read. These students also had the opportunity to visit Meadowbrook Theatre.

The literature book used in the sophomore regular English classes contains a number of short stories and poems and gives abridgements of many novels and plays. A study of fiction and nofiction is done and books such as Lord of the Flies, Aku-Aku, and In Cold Blood are read. Honors English 10 consists of those students having advanced abilities in reading and writing. The class reads novels and plays written by foreign authors as far back as the height of ancient Greek civilization. The Iliad, Don Quixote, and Cyrano de Bergerac are examples. Panel discussions provide a basis for an interesting form of communication among students who have read different books.

The eleventh grade English curriculum differs in many respects from the previous year's course. A Word Wealth book, enriches the student's vocabulary and is used in both junior and senior years, is introduced. Huckleberry Finn and The Red Badge of Courage are examples of the American literature read in all junior English classes. A Rhetoric Case Book, used in Honors English 11, replaces the grammar book. It is used during the last two years of high school and helps the student develop, as well as analyze, the fundamentals of writing.

The underclass English courses are geared to the abilities of the student. The levels are designed to aid them in more advanced communications of the English language.

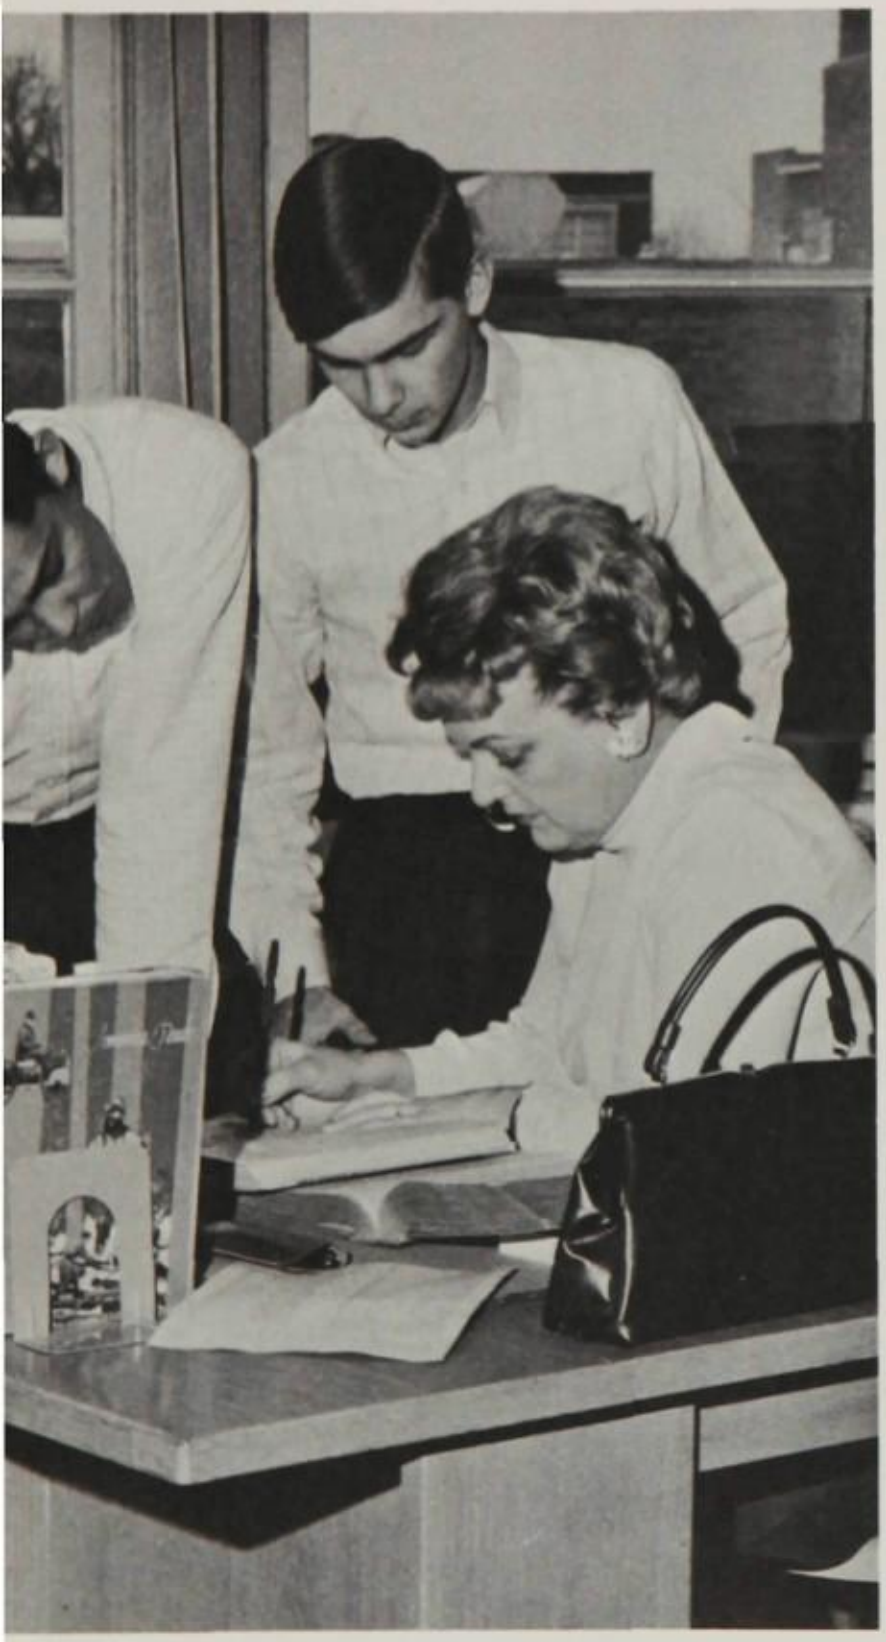
Seniors Utilize Novel Methods in Studying Literature



Many seniors think that their last year of English will be filled with grammar, vocabulary, and themes. While some of this work is required, Berkley's teaching staff tries to lessen a few of the pains of English by offering more enjoyable classwork.

Mrs. Phyllis McGeorge stimulated the imaginations of her advanced placement English students by encouraging participation in making tapes which recorded all aspects of 17th century England, including art, music, wars, and politics. These tapes will be made available to interested BHS English teachers and students.

Interesting oral reports liven up regular English classes with topics ranging from hippies to avant garde writings. Outside reading introduces new approaches to psychological interpretations. Paradise Lost and Canterbury Tales were read and discussed in class, along with material from the reading book.

Also available to twelfth graders are courses in business and senior English. Business English covers general principles of business writing techniques and communication. Senior English provides students with a chance to improve their writing skills and reading comprehension. These abilities are learned through study and interpretation of modern prose.

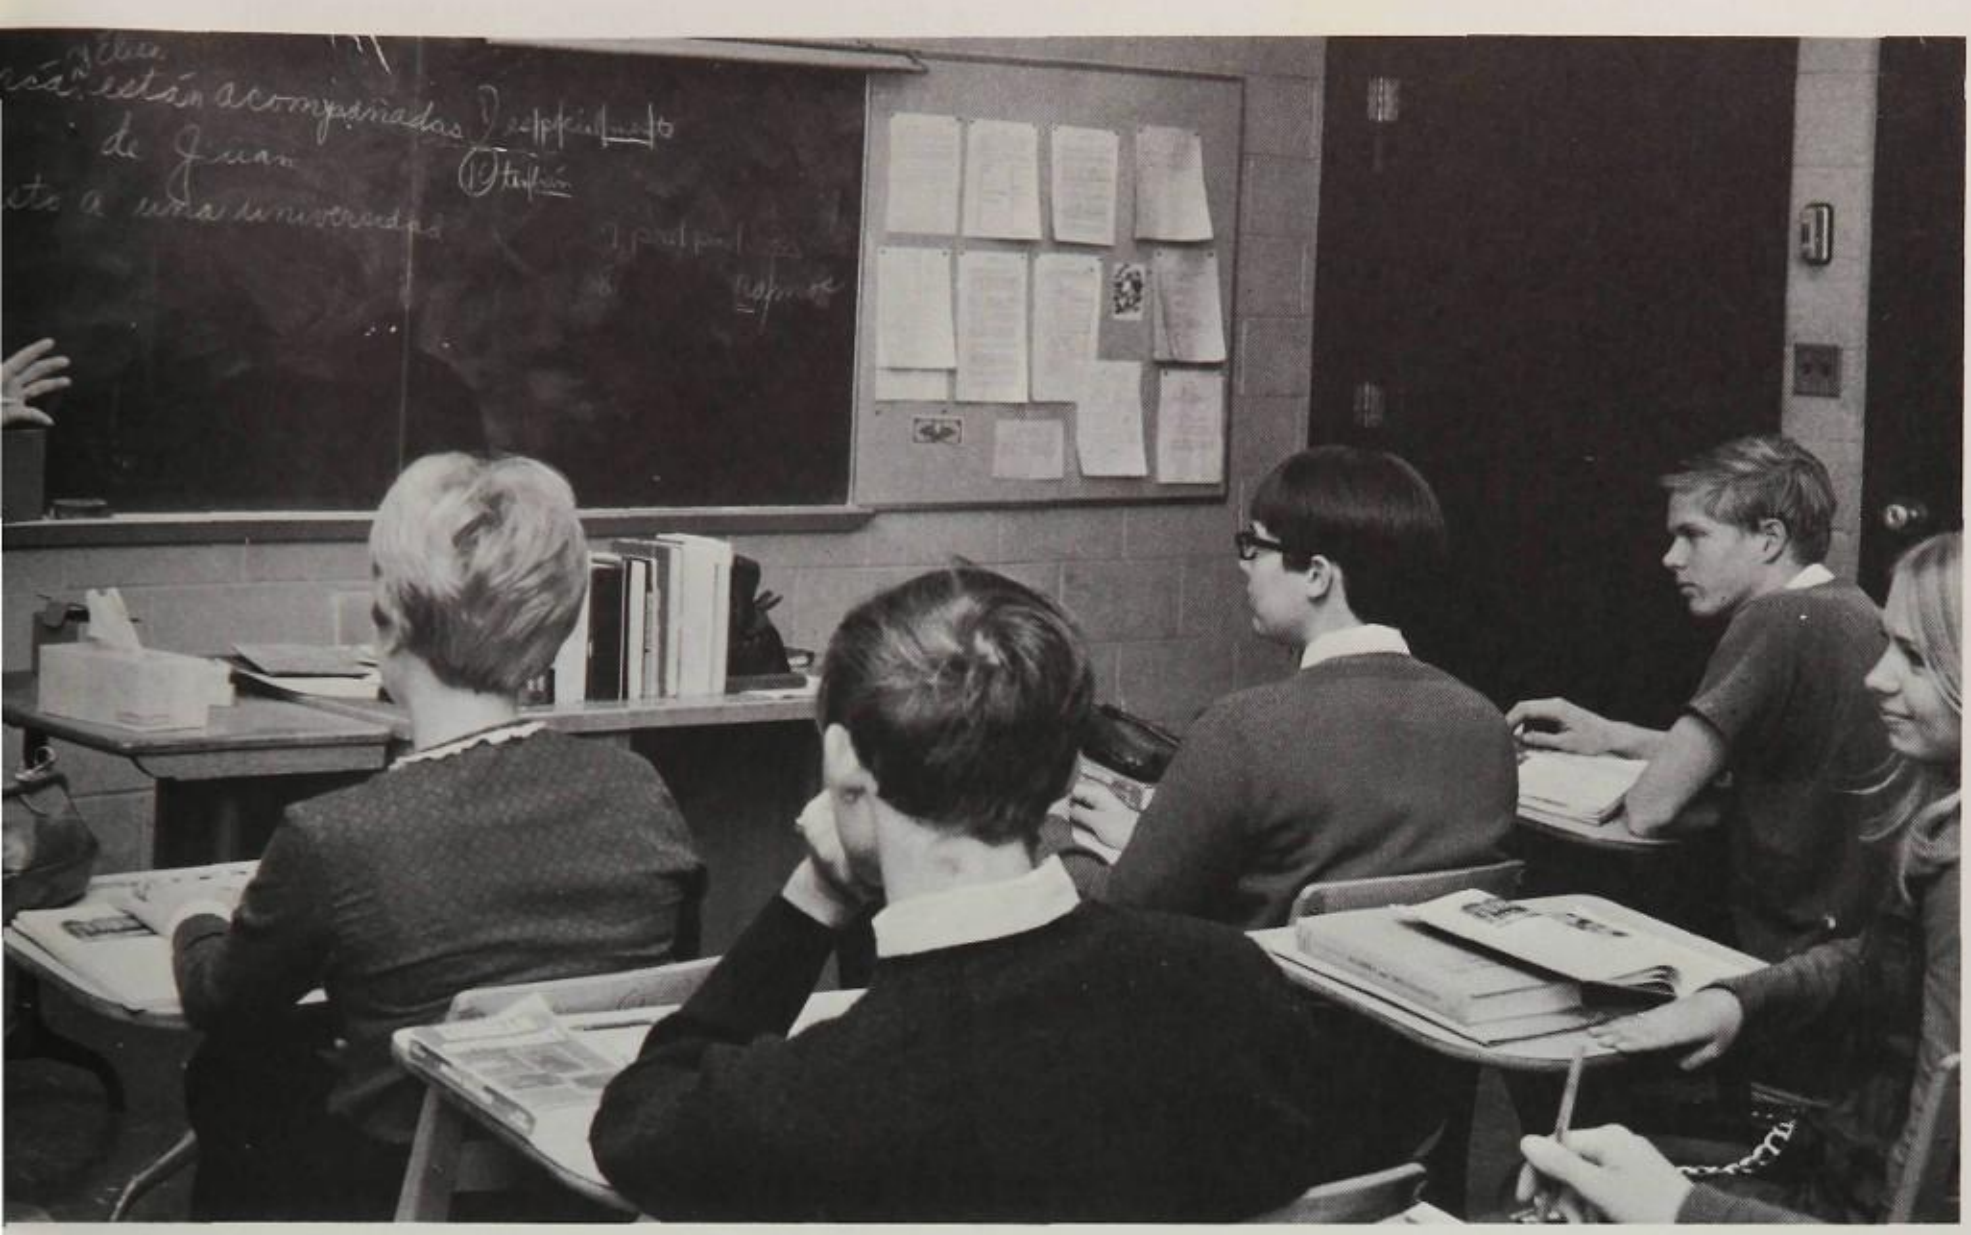
Language



Studies Provide Better Pathways to Understanding

No matter what the hour, the language corridor at Berkley High resounds with anything from Latin grammar or German verb conjugations to French electronic music and Spanish folk songs.

Last Summer Mrs. Antoinette Arsenault participated in an Institute for Advanced Study of French Literature and Culture. This six-week course at the University of Michigan provided practical aid for high school teachers of advanced French classes. Voici La France, the new third year French book, deals with the geography, people, and culture of France. New books were also distributed to all German classes. The old text was written in German script, while the new book uses conventional Gothic script.

Latin III and IV classes were combined again this year to facilitate communication between teacher and student through a two year course. The class reads the poetry and prose of Virgil and Cicero. First and second year Spanish classes approach their subject through the use of tapes and oral reports, while third year classes read short stories and other literary forms. The Spanish department at BHS has been working in conjunction with the junior high schools and will offer, for the first time, a Spanish IV class in the near future.

Berkley's capable staff provides a varied language curriculum emphasizing the importance of multi-lingual communications today.

Topical Approach to History Encourages Student Interest

This year's history classes are examining their subject from a new angle–the topical or conceptual approach. This technique enables students to concentrate on related topics rather than skimming them in a chronological study. With the aid of this method students develop speaking and note-taking skills and can participate in more activities. It is through the conceptual approach that the teacher can better relate his educational material to the student.

The sophomore world cultures classes explore the many facets of civilization by studying the Middle East and the Orient–their races and their religions.

It is mandatory that all juniors take American history. The topical approach gave these students an opportunity to hear a lecture by Mr. Angelini from the local immigration department. They also did independent study in the field of transportation and communication.

Seniors taking contemporary history study problems which face today's society, while students who take world history study the problems of the past.

BHS offers a complete history program, which gives the students an opportunity to gain an excellent background in preparatior for further studies.

Berkley Students Convert Social Sciences to Reality

All is tense in the social studies department at Berkley High School. In the government classes, Congress is debating the ratification of the nineteenth Constitutional amendment and the Mexican delegation is taking its stand on the admittance of Red China to the United Nations. Psychology students are observing the problem-solving ability of rats, while the school's capitalists are studying the nation's economic foreign policy.

A regular or an honors government course is required of all seniors. Regular classes use a series of paperback books as their text, and learn the background and practices of national, state, and local governments. The honors class concentrates on preparing for the model United Nations, which takes place at the University of Detroit. This year's delegations represent countries of Denmark, Ethiopia, Mexico, and Sweden.

Psychology classes study the basic fabric of human behavior. An opportunity to visit Northville, a state mental hospital, is provided during a study of mental illnesses. The economics students spend time examining the stock market by purchasing and selling stocks according to Wall Street trends.

The social studies department is an active part of the school and enables students to acquire some of the vital tools necessary for competing in today's complex society.

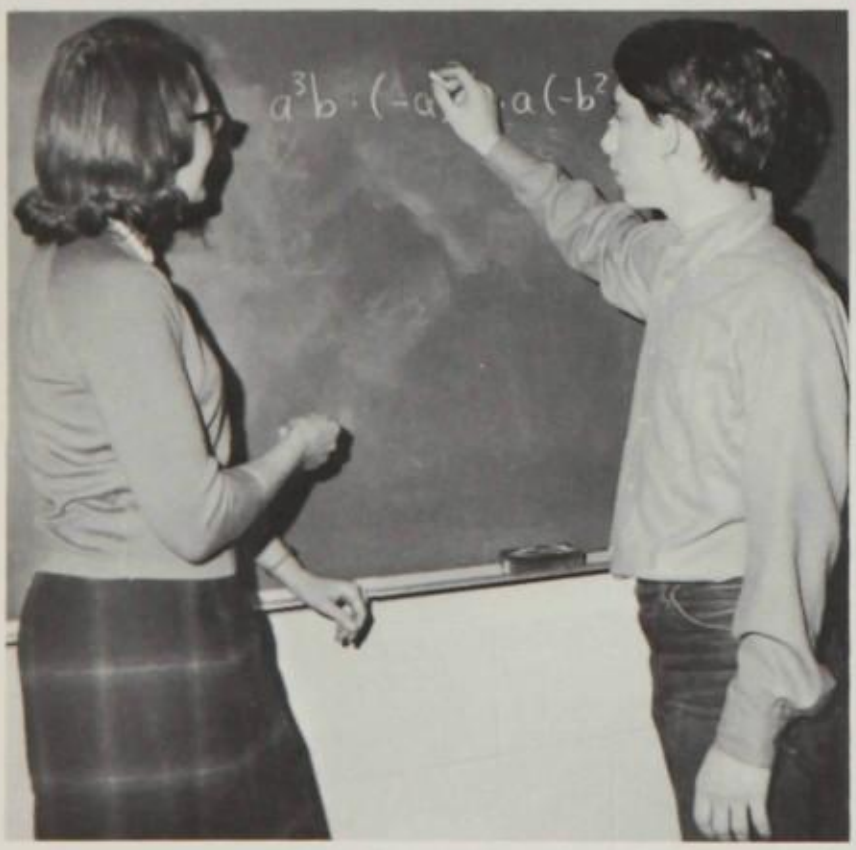
Prospective Mathematicians Perform Magic With Numbers



Even the names of some math courses at Berkley sound complicated and confusing, but the teachers try to present new material to their classes in a logical and interesting manner. Courses range from geometry and trigonometry to introductory analysis.

Geometry is first available to sophomores and covers solid and plane figures. This course also goes into the fields of symbolic logic and vectors. Honors geometry students use a special book in a study of geometric proofs and theorems. Students also choose from other math classes such as business and shop math. These courses are taken by students whose futures may involve mechanical or practical math.

Juniors in their second year of math study a course of integrated algebra and trigonometry. This class begins with a review of ninth grade algebra and correlates it with introductory trigonometry. An honors math course concentrates on the concepts of factoring, graphing, and problems in probability.

Seniors continue the honors series by taking either advanced placement math, concerned with progressions and series, or honors math 12. Students in this course approach the same problems as advanced placement students, but develop new methods of solving and expressing them. Seniors may also take introductory analysis, an intensified study of geometric and trigonometric equations.

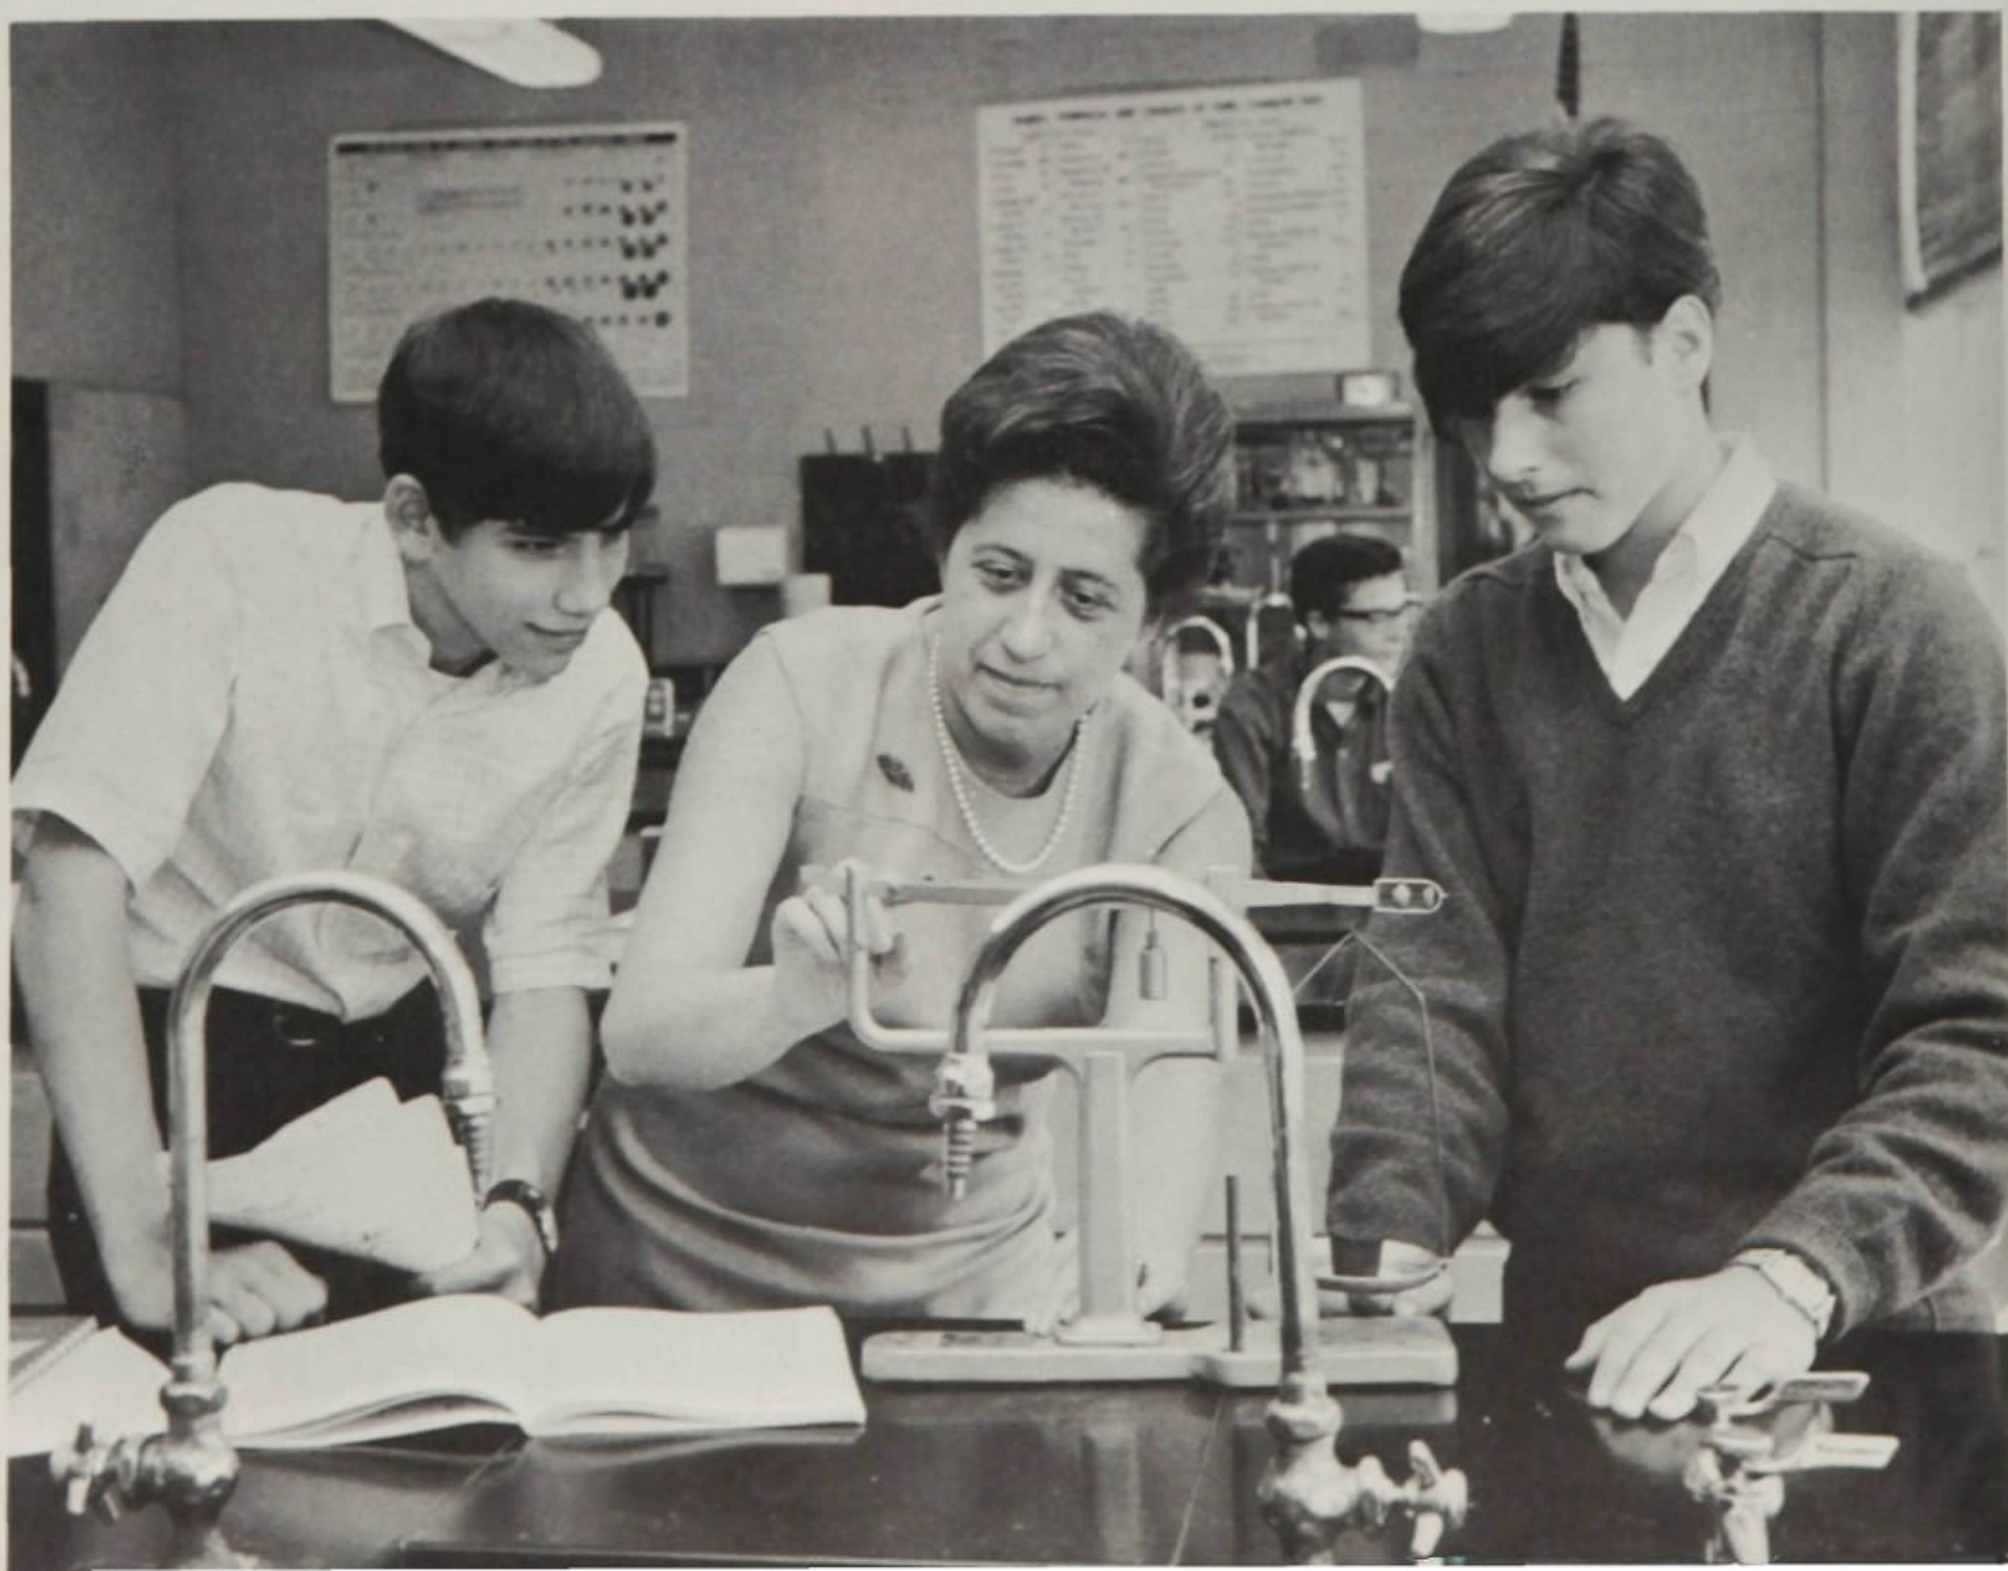
BELOW: Mrs. Helene Politzer explains the basic techniques for weighing material accurately on a balance to juniors Fred Frumin and Bruce Etkin.

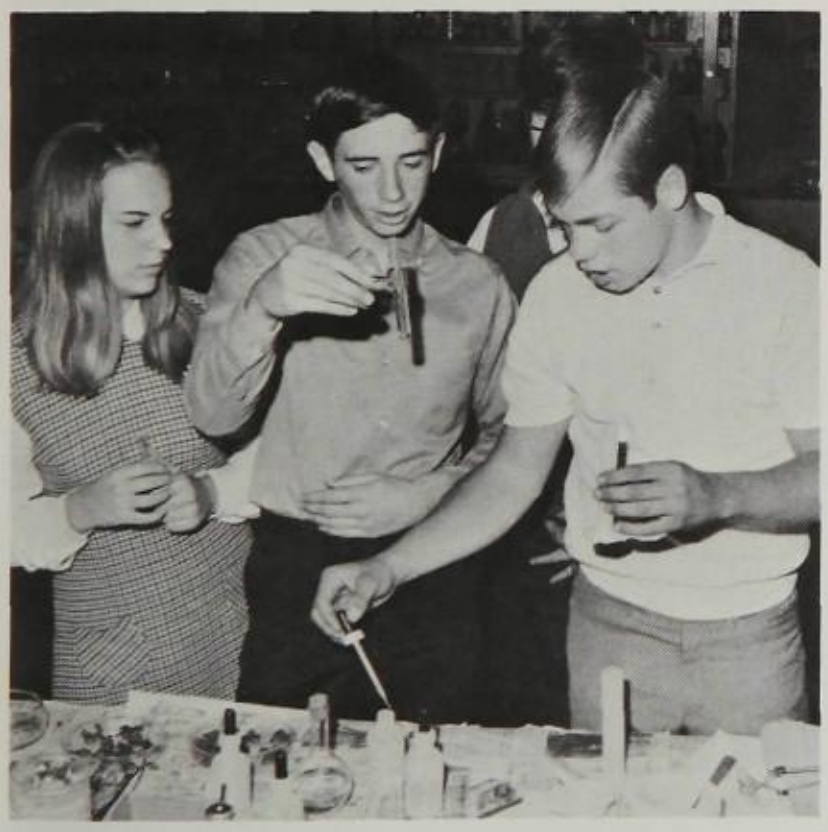


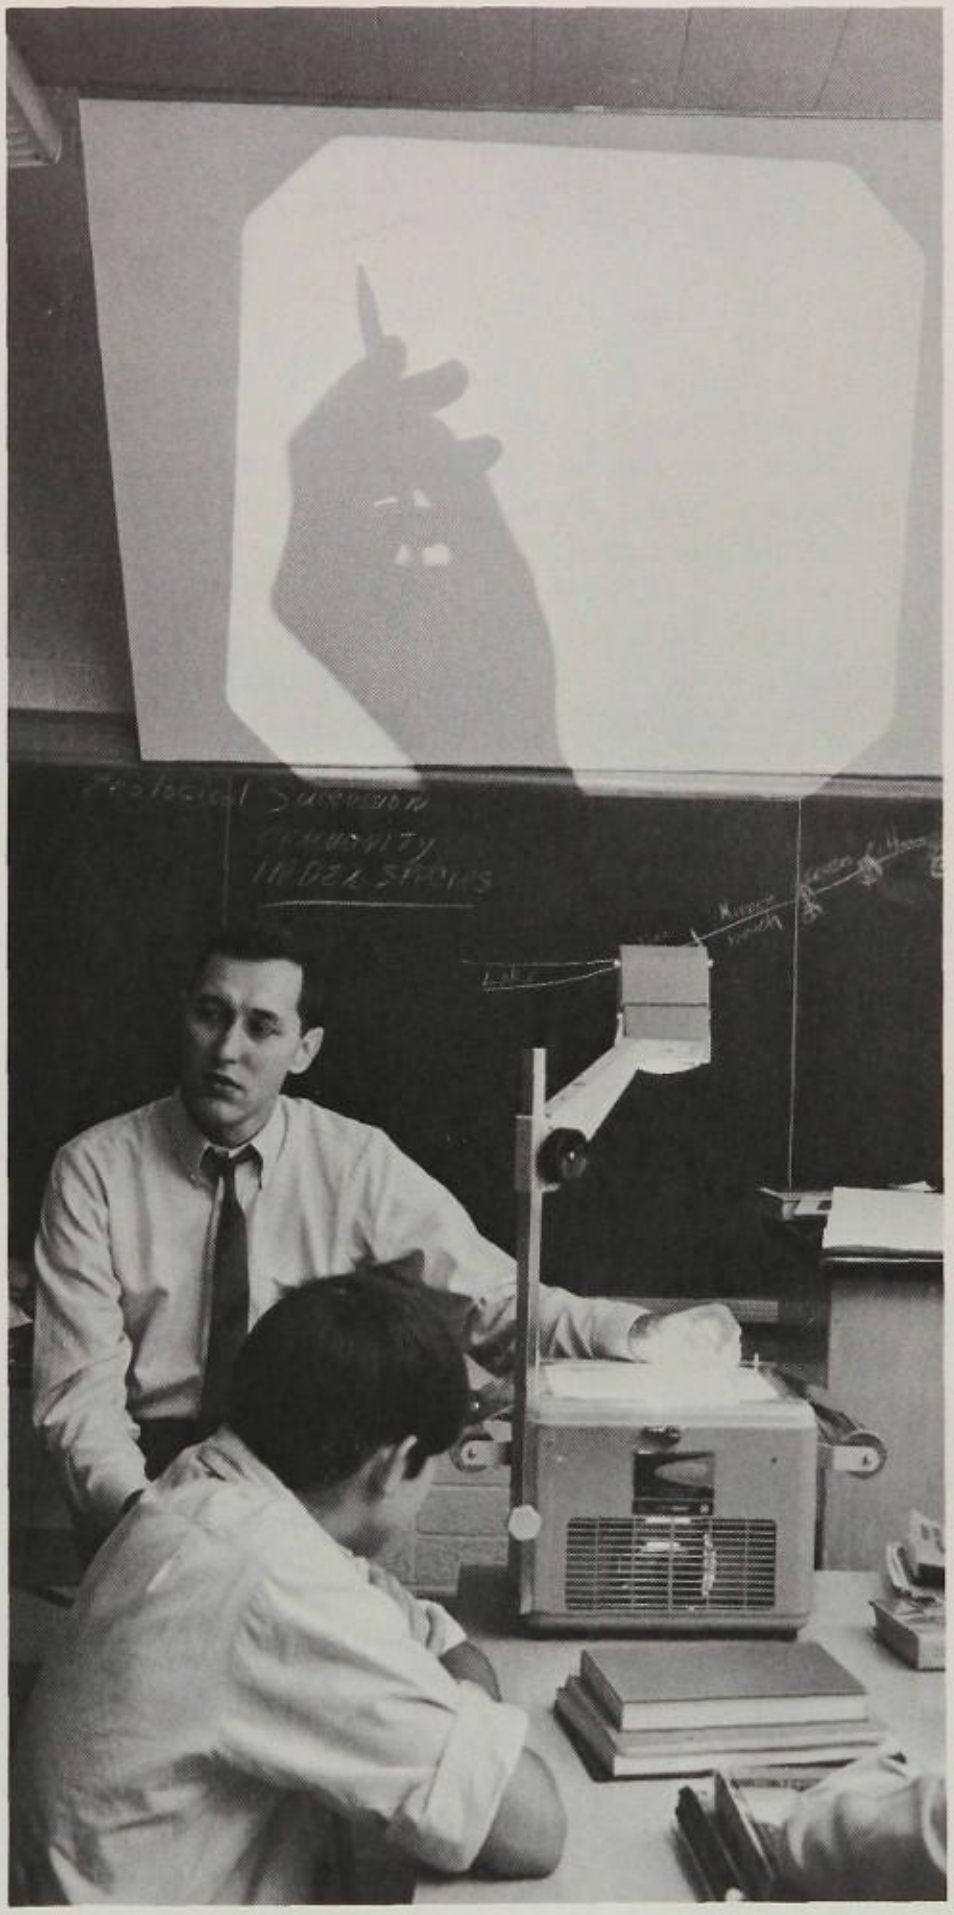
BHS Students Investigate Concepts of Biology, Chemistry

Has anyone ever lost his way to biology or chemistry labs? How could they; what other rooms in the school have the distinct smell of formaldehyde or sulfur? Instructors in these courses began preparing themselves for this year's group of mad scientists long before school started. Mr. Dan Bury, department head, spent part of his summer at the University of Colorado where he prepared material for new science textbooks. Mr. Charles Jarvis taught a summer science course and took his students on many field trips, including a visit to the University of Michigan. Mr. John Bergstrom, who has had a scholarship to Michigan State University for the past three summers, worked on an advanced degree.

Everything from genetics and evolution to plant and animal life is discussed in the biology classes. Basic studies are supplemented by experiments ranging from the now famous frog dissections to the highlight of the school year, breeding fruit flies.

Chemistry students start the year out by observing a candle and progress to titrations, solubility, and quantitative analysis. They divide their time among lab work, discussions, and special films provided to help explain material from the textbook.





Challenges of Tomorrow Face Physics and Research Students

"Look out for my slinky!" "Shut that door; my plants have to grow in the dark!" "Keep that tree in your sights." These exclamations and others like them are not uncommon coming from a physics or science research class at Berkley.

Physics used to bring only definitions of matter and light to mind, but Mrs. Sally Daniel and Mr. John Roberts have changed all that. Experiments done in conjunction with nearly every chapter let students see and work out physical laws and concepts. A study in springs and motion, for instance, involves observing slinkies run up and down the staircases.

This year's science research students wear bigger smiles on their faces; the long-awaited lab units finally arrived. Now with complete laboratory facilities, nothing can stand in the way of Berkley's great team of future scientists, headed by Mr. Charles Jarvis and Mr. Henry Wiegand. Lab blocks during class concentrate on plant growth and development. Outside projects, however, are not restricted. This year's include holography, bacteriology, and a heart-lung machine.

In light of the important accomplishments being achieved every day by scientists, the value of the physics and research courses offered here is readily evident.

Students Acquire Skills to Prepare themselves for Futures in Business

The halls are alive with the rhythmic clicking of keys as students type to music. This year Berkley's business department has added new equipment to familiarize students with today's business techniques.

Courses in both shorthand and notehand are offered and appeal to college-bound students as well as those venturing into the business world. Wireless shorthand lab equipment enables students to take dictation by tuning in one of three speeds, according to their writing ability. Personal typing is a semester course designed to teach college-bound students the basic typing fundamentals. Typing I and II are more intense studies in secretarial skills.

Business machines classes learn how to use such office equipment as adding, calculating, and bookkeeping machines. A recently purchased cash register is used by retailing students as well. Distributive education students are making good use of the new display units added to the department this year by showing their merchandise in the most attractive ways possible.

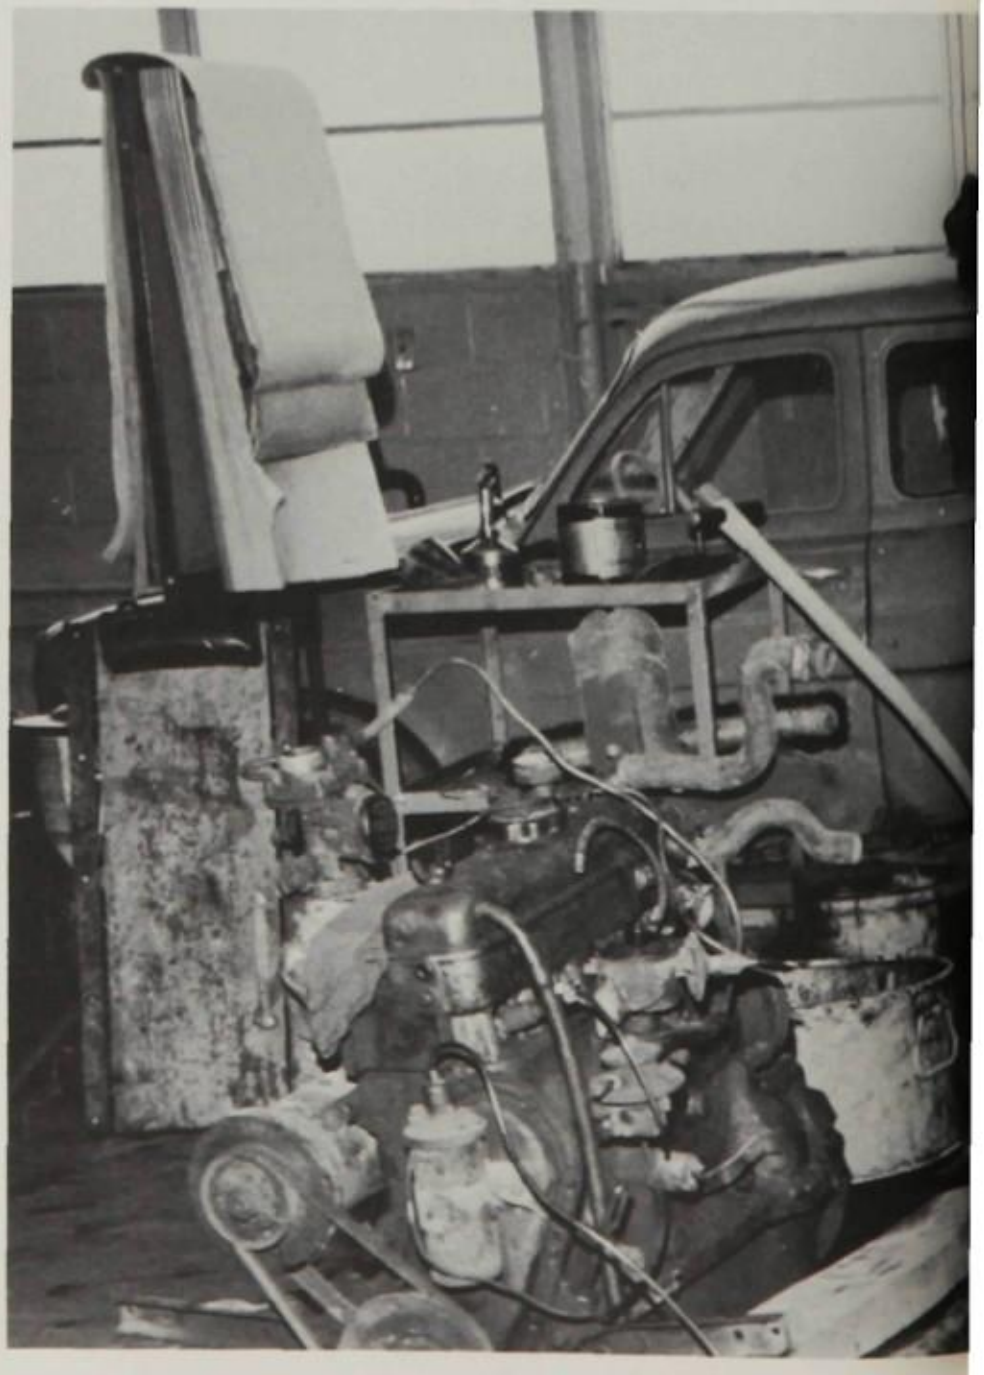
Accomplished Tradesmen

The west wing of Berkley High clanks and buzzes with the sound of machinery in motion long after three o'clock.

Boys may select from five fields of industrial instruction that are offered–auto, drafting, electronics, metal, and wood. Each one offers a one semester introductory course that precedes more advanced second and third year classes.

Auto students progress from a general study of the car's basic components to actual engine servicing. Introductory drafting covers the basic techniques of industrial drawing. Second and third year courses allow students to specialize in either metal trades or architectural drafting. Electronics discusses principles and application of electricity in everyday life. Second year students study and build a radio receiver, while Electricity II teaches industrial fundamentals.

Metal students put the basic principles they learned to work in processes such as welding, riveting, and sheet metal fabrication. Second year metal places special attention on more advanced methods and techniques. Students in woodworking engage in such projects as lamps, tables, and bookcases, after sufficient practice with commonly used tools.



Endeavor to Increase Proficiency

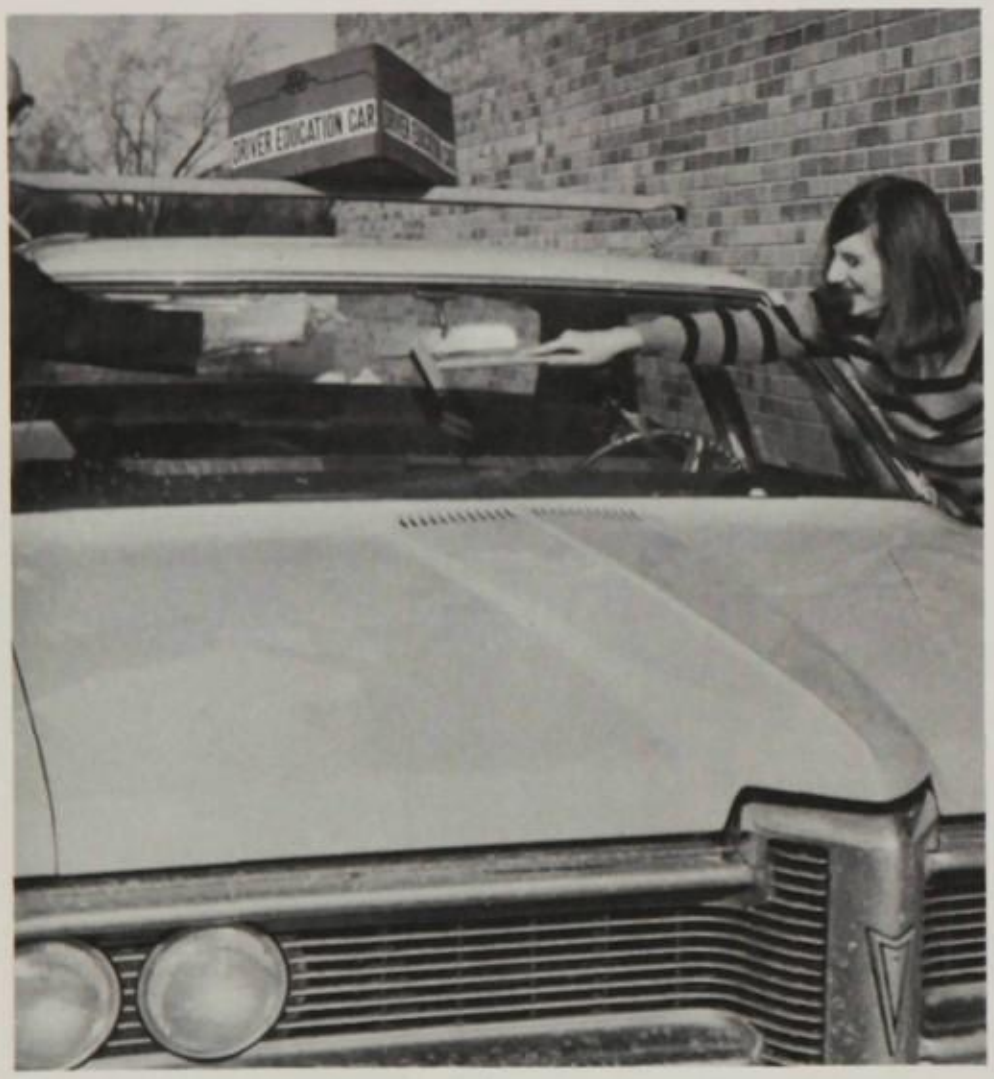
Technique Application Precedes License; Purposeful Girls Aim for Domestic Goals



Pots, pans, pins, and patterns coordinate to form an atmosphere of domesticity in the home economics room. A short course in meal planning helps the girls to realize nutritional values of food before they attempt complicated recipes on their own. A study concerning child care is also offered which discusses and plans activities for small children. In order to become fully aware of the newest looks in clothes, the girls attend a fashion show which helps them select material and patterns for their sewing projects, graded on neatness and accuracy.

Rules and roadwork are the two main components of driver's education. The many techniques of maneuvering a car are studied and applied after a student becomes acquainted with the car. Instruction in the use and care of a car precedes the actual roadwork, which includes drills in the stopping, parking, and turning of the car. An obstacle course is also provided to help students concentrate on mastering their control of the wheel. Cars are driven through this course as a weekly test until the students can drive through without hitting any obstacles. Students are tested on their skill in driving and on their ability to remember and apply rules. Hours of memorizing, studying, and practicing are worthwhile preliminaries to the awarding of a driver's license.

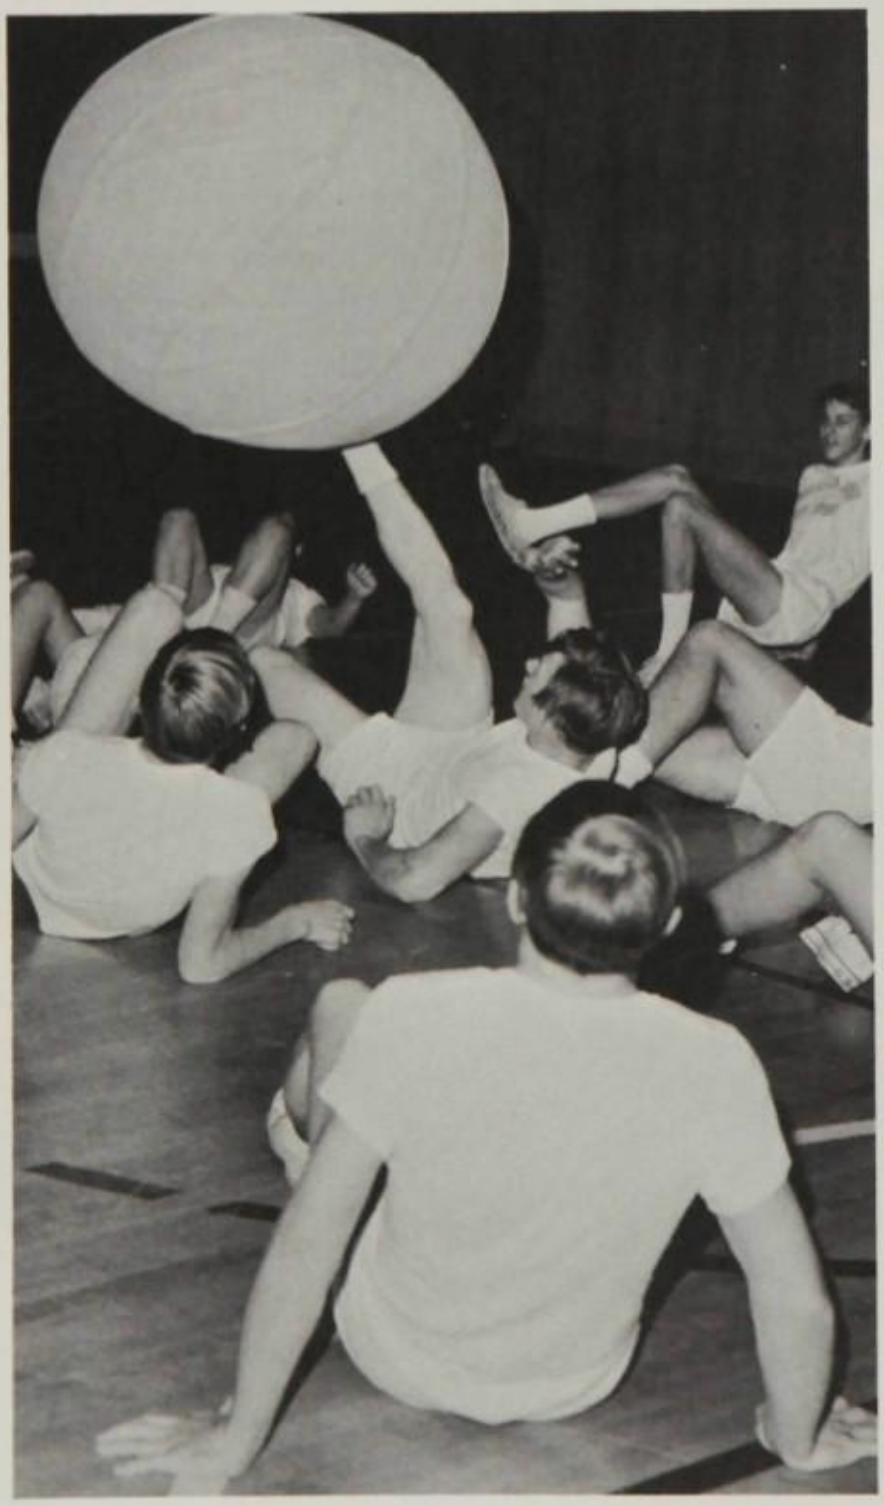
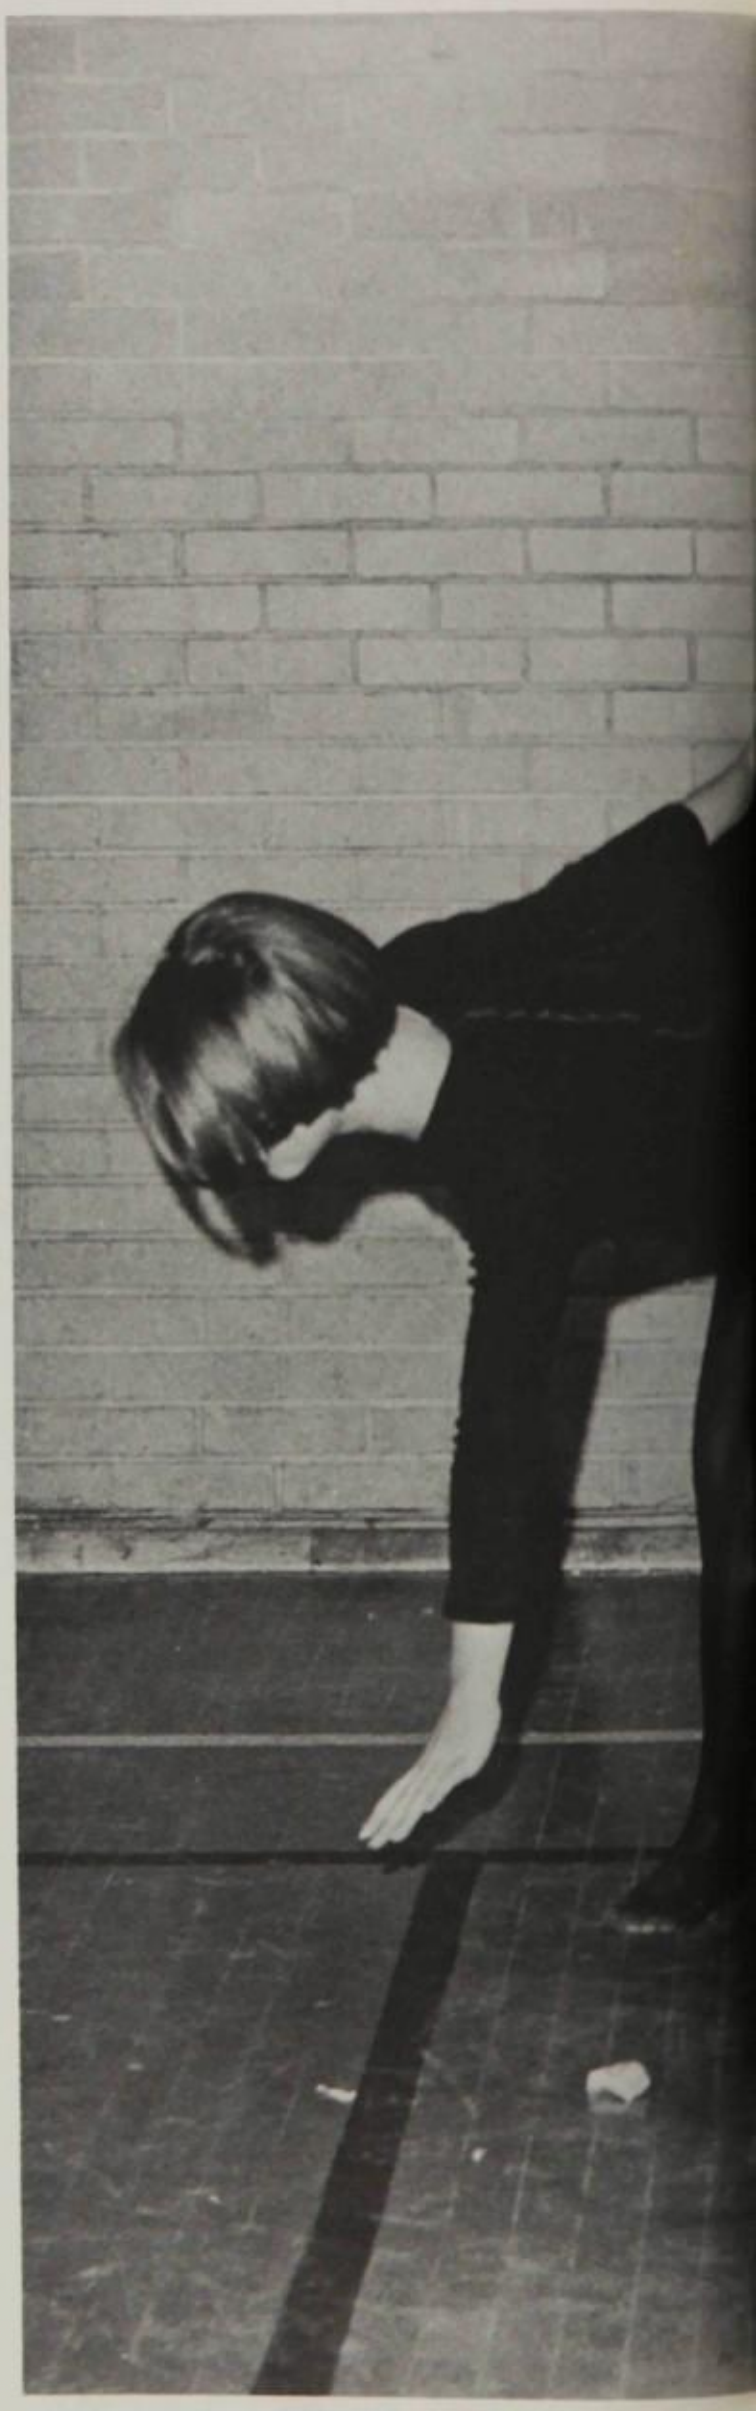
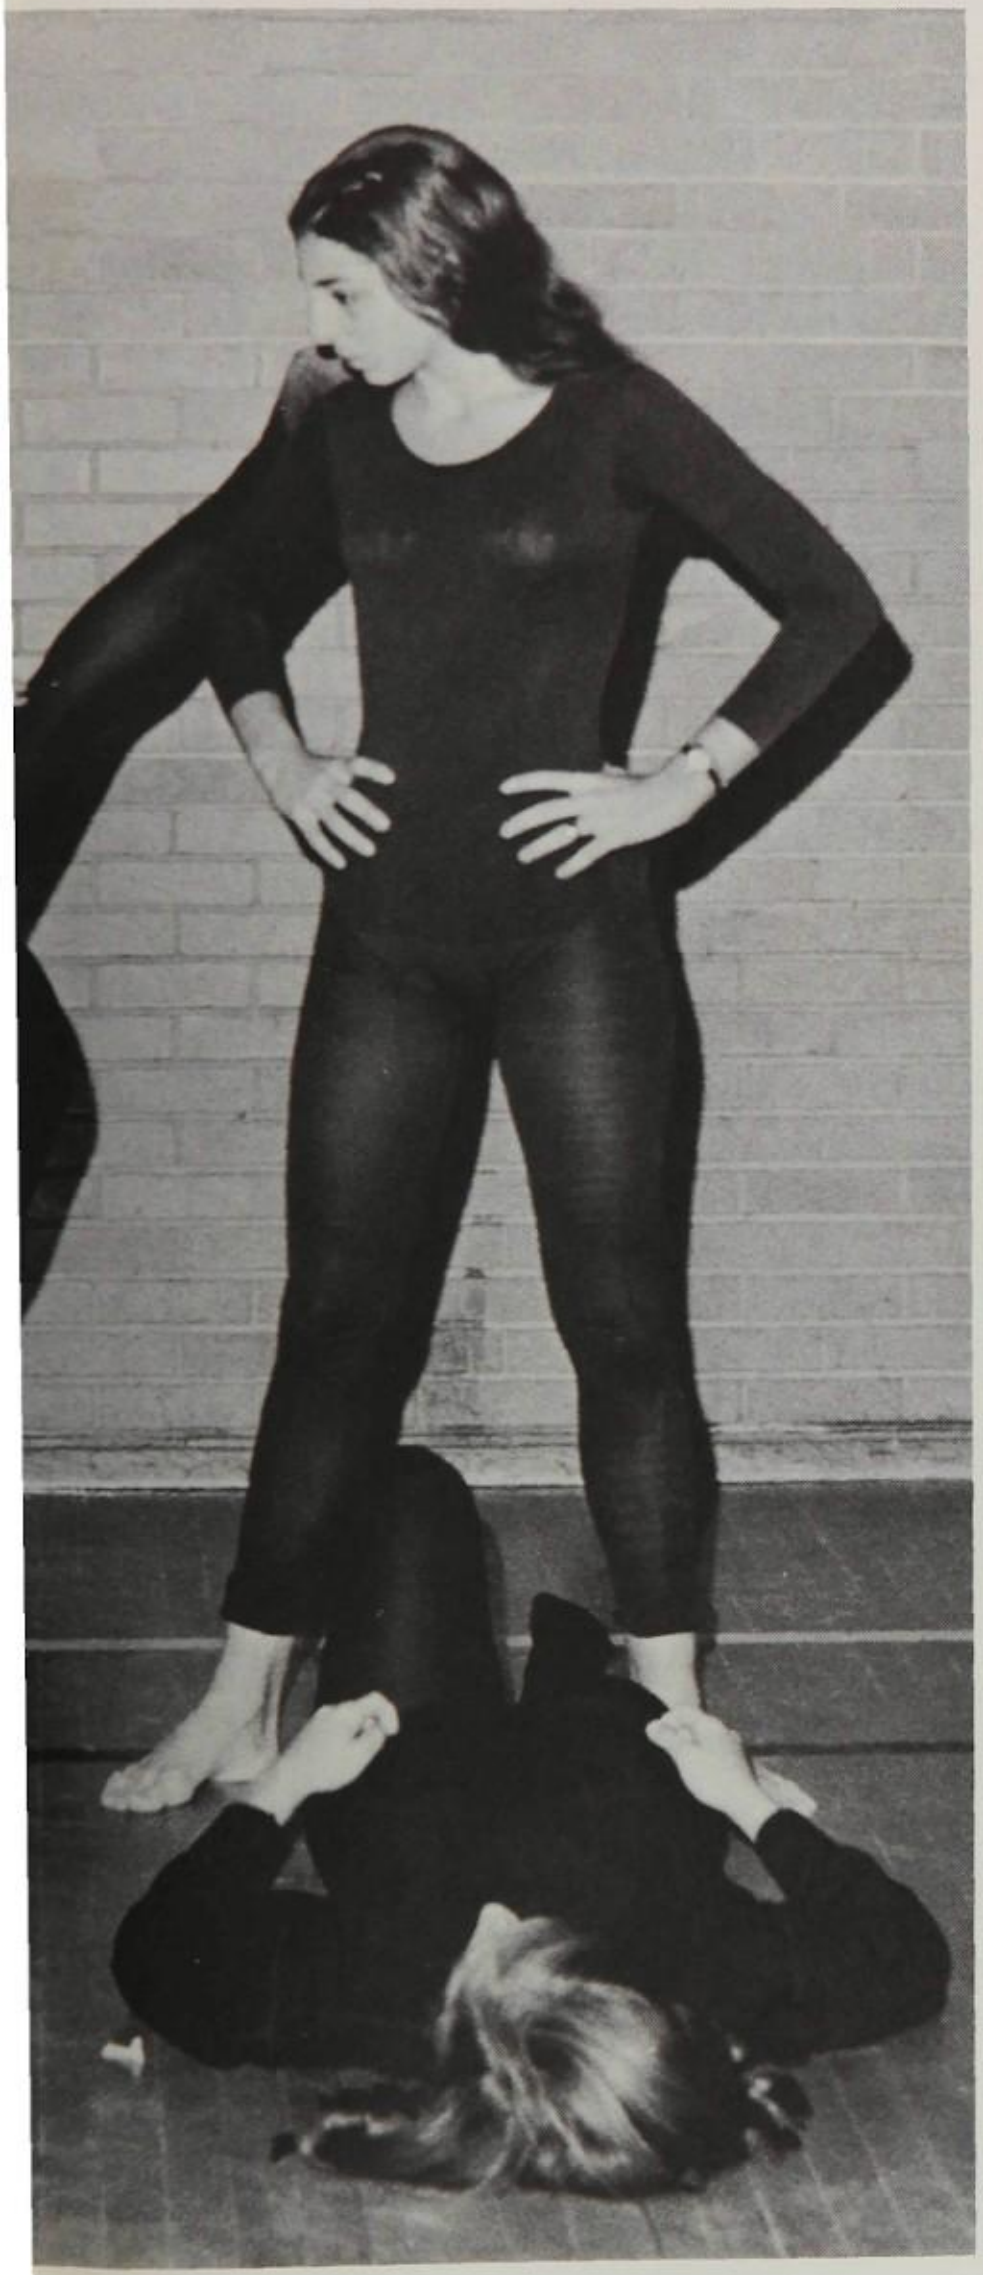
Phys Ed Combines





Eager Student Participation with Many Unusual Activities



The theme of Berkley High's physical education department is definitely variety. Students participate in a wide range of activities from team sports such as basketball, soccer, and speedball, to more individualized endeavors like boxing and modern dancing.

Mr. Lane Ramsdell is new to the physical education staff this year. He and Mr. Robert Finley coordinated a variety of activities that have really kept the underclass boys in great shape. "Exercising," says Mr. Ramsdell, "is the key to this program." Each period, ten minute calisthenics sessions are followed by some skill developing activity–wrestling, cageball, or gymnastics.

Miss Georgia Hovey, besides instructing sophomore girls in physical fitness through fencing and modern dancing, has added a new course in folk dancing to this year's curriculum. This change follows the department's belief that students should gain skills and stay physically fit while having fun. Also new this year is an honors gym class for junior and senior girls interested in pursuing their athletic interests more seriously.

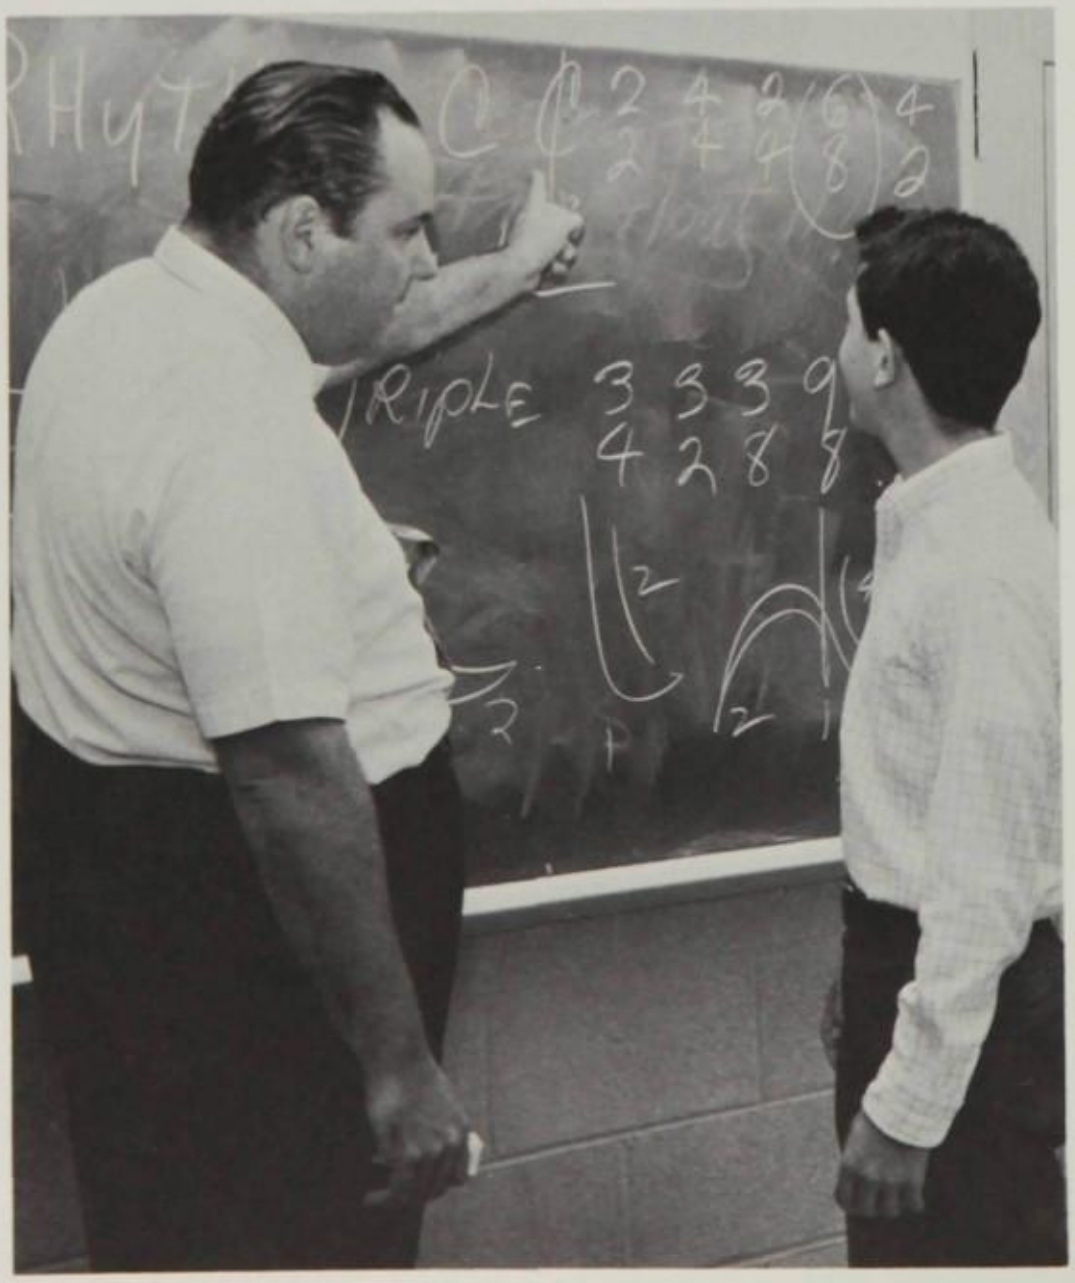
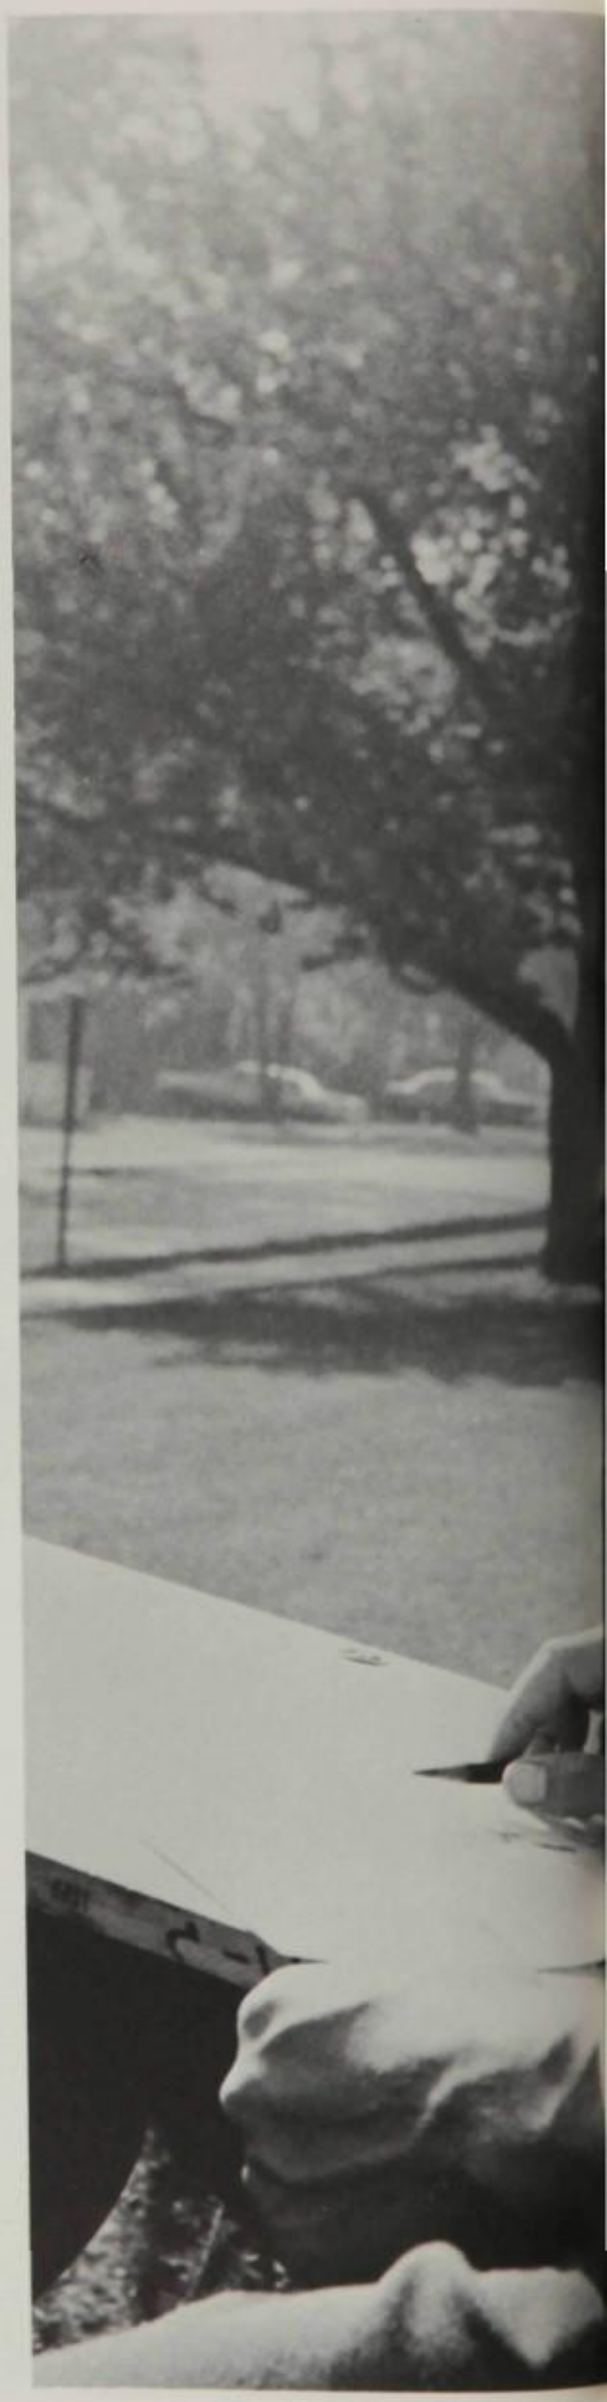
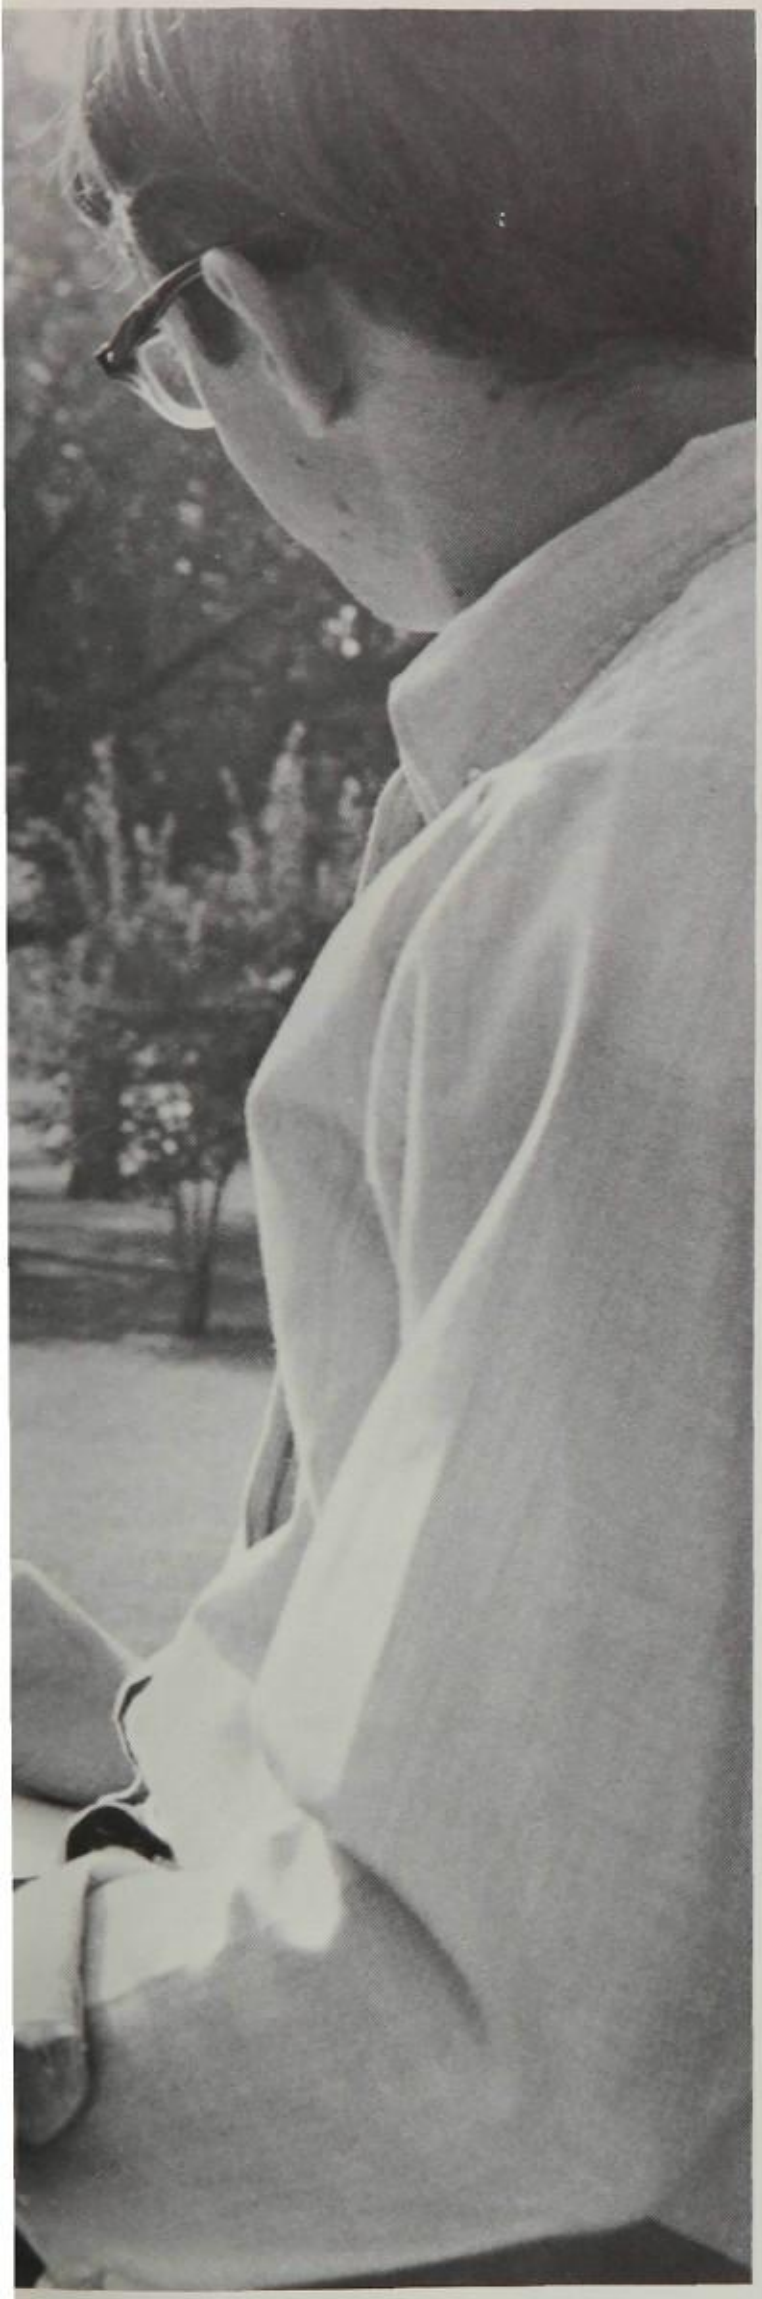
Imagination and





Talent Unite to Produce Visual , Aural Beauty



Weird, psychedelic sounds going through Berkley's halls have caused some students to doubt their sanity. These students should set their minds at ease; this is only part of the imaginative curriculum designed by Mr. William DeMaria to develop appreciation of music in music heritage class. Aside from choir, boys' and girls' glee, offered by the vocal music department, varsity, concert, and beginning band are available to instrumentally minded students.

For the artist, charcoal, chalk, pencils, and paint are stepping stones to expression of inner feelings. Says Mrs. Muriel Cowan, "It is not the projects, but rather the students that make art a unique experience." The same projects--drawing, graphics, painting, sculpturing–are undertaken by all art classes. The difference lies in the independence of the students. After an introduction in Art I, students progress to deeper involvement in Art II and III, and in Art IV, to experimental studio work. Art heritage is offered to juniors and seniors. Classes concentrate on the origins and appreciation of art. Their studio experience involves working with pottery or sandblocks.

Art and music classes are designed to help students develop their talent and experiment with self-expression.

Views and News Spark Journalism, Spectator Students

Journalism students and Spectator staff members are always looking for news–anything from student forums to school dances is a potential topic.

Juniors and seniors taking journalism not only learn how a professional newspaper staff functions, but also cultivate a critical awareness of current events through reports and discussions. Students take field trips to a local newspaper and also have the opportunity to attend seminars at various colleges, including the University of Detroit, where they learn fresh writing techniques and skills.

Seniors comprising the Spectator staff are responsible for keeping the student body aware of happenings not only in the school, but also in the community. This year's new features include a guest editorial spot each month, news exchange with other high school papers, and cartoons. Writers also represent Berkley High School in various local newspapers. Another important part of Spectator is its subsidiary newspapers, Smoke Signals and The Insider.

Determined Orators Master the Art of Verbal Expression

Cat got your tongue? If that's your problem, Berkley's speech department offers many opportunities for students to develop their vocal talents and poise. Speech classes begin with short reports on current controversial topics, such as the Vietnam war or the anti-poverty program and advance to the more involved demonstrative and persuasive speeches.

Persuasive speeches are designed to develop the student's viewpoint and encourage him to take a definite stand on his topic. Tapes are made of each speech and played back for constructive class criticism. Public speaking techniques are studied in a course involving discussions on the different methods of delivering the speech.

Dramatics students conquer their nervousness and fright of acting and speaking quickly, as they gain self-confidence through a realization of their hidden talents. Improvisations and interpretive readings aid in learning techniques of acting. Actors study ways to more successfully convey serious moods or happy expressions. Methods of producing a play are applied by students in stagecraft who should receive more credit for their excellent work. Play production includes lighting, costuming, and sound effects. Drama festivals at the end of each semester constitute one half of each student's final exam. The other half consists of a written test involving play procedure and dramatic interpretation.

in Student Government

Workday, Homecoming, and elections are just a few of the major events at Berkley High that the Student Council and the Association of Student Organizations arrange.

Led by David Share, the Student Council succeeds in bringing together the opinions of the entire school, so that representation and participation of all are achieved. The delegates and twenty-one representatives make up committees that take care of all financial matters, school-wide elections, relationships between students and teachers, alumni activities, and the student monitor system which gives greater freedom during school hours.

The A.S.O., under the chairmanship of Steven Dresner, brings continuity to all school organizations. Clubs are able to learn of others' events during the school year and to regulate school projects. The coordination of Homecoming and the fund raising concessions are the primary concerns of the A.S.O. members.

Honor Students Exemplify High BHS Standard of Achievement

The tensions, frustrations and disappointments involved in school life all suddenly seem to mean something when the outstanding students are rewarded with membership in the Berkley High School Chapter of the National Honor Society. Each year juniors and seniors with a 3.0 average or better become eligible for election into the society. Five percent of the junior class and ten percent of the senior class are elected each spring.

Through the faculty rating system, teachers decide which students best express outstanding achievements in the fields of scholarship, service, leadership, and character. Senior members, together with the new members and their parents, are invited to initiation night, where Mrs. Donna Backus presides over the candlelight induction ceremony. Following this ceremony the names of the new members are inscribed in the National Archives Building in Washington, D.C.

Spirits

Soar as Pep Club Members Provide Enthusiastic Support

"Go, team, go!" School spirit becomes the Pep Club's major concern each year as the organization initiates ways of increasing interest in school functions. This year the Pep Club, aided by the popular and indispensable Pep Band, instituted many new techniques for promoting enthusiasm throughout the student body.

As perennial boosters of interest in the various sports at Berkley High, the Pep Club fulfilled part of its large task by providing fan buses for all away games. It also staged after-school rallies to spark attention and excite students to a spirited atmosphere. The cheerleaders added to the excitement by arranging the sales of pom-poms and miniature megaphones. This year the Pep Club did more to promote awareness of sports by sponsoring many of its own concessions. During lunches, as well as throughout the school day, the Pep Club members sold "go go" buttons and cowbells which helped publicize upcoming sports events and stimulate interest.

As a leader of student functions during the 1967-68 school year, the Pep Club found the needed enthusiasm in all facets of school life. The club proved this when it successfully produced Berkley's exciting road rally, where students competed for prizes while trying to decipher intricate directions and reach their final and mysterious goal. Most of the Pep Club's innovations were successful, and by the end of the year it was evident that the organization had been victorious in its efforts.

Clubs Furnish Extra Sports Challenges to All Athletes

Girls wishing to find exercise and enjoyment need to search no further than the girls' gym, where every afternoon G A A members prove the merits of physical fitness. Encouraging shouts and rumbles are heard as the G A A athletes demonstrate their swimming and venture outdoors to test their skills in field hockey. Abandoning the sportslight, the girls also sponsor the sales of bake goods and sweat-shirts.

Having earned a letter in a varsity sport, boys can be initiated into the Varsity Club. Initiations are challenging and the entire school feels the pulse of the excitement. The "Varsity" boys annually arrange the bonfire to brighten up Homecoming activities, the car wash for exchange students' Work Day, and the sale of goodfellow papers to help in community activities. Also, sports-minded students may reap the benefits of the boys' efforts, since they manage concessions at events.

Character and Poise Produce Alertness in Young Adults

Every woman has a certain amount of charm, culture, and character, but it is the purpose of the Tri-C Club to increase and enhance these qualities in Berkley girls. Each project of the year, designed for the feminine mind, is devoted to this goal. Although the comical initiations do not bring out the best in the new members, they do show the girls' spirit and worthiness as future members. To keep in step with current trends the participants sponsored a spring fashion show, saw The Sand Pebbles, and entertained their boyfriends at a winter sleigh ride. Tri-C members also painted clean-up sings to achieve the correct atmosphere at Berkley.

Gym instructor Miss Georgia Hovey and a few of her students who were interested in modern dance formed a new club this year for practicing and performing their unique mixture of both subtle and exaggerated dance movements. Constant after-school exercising gave the girls perfection and co-ordination in their motions. The girls danced at the Christmas concert and at an exhibition for Work Day, and both major performances were successful. The dance enthusiasts also had the opportunity to see accomplished free form experts in concert at Eastern Michigan University. The Modern Dance Club members added a new grace to Berkley this year.

Combination of Interests

and Scientific Incentive Develop Well-Rounded Student

It is now possible for active Berkleyites to participate in every sport that can be found in Michigan. The Sportsman's Club, sponsored by Mr. Charles Jarvis, was established so that anyone whose interests range from sledding to fishing can enjoy supervised trips. Two canoe trips paddled on the Huron River and a hunting pack ventured into the northern Michigan woodland. Fishing at Ortonville was a popular excursion, but the major outing of the year was the three-day Waterloo trip in February. The members' uncontrollable love for the snow was satisfied by sledding, skating, and ice fishing at the recreation area.

The B S R P, better known to the science-minded students as the Berkley Science Research Project, is constantly toiling with the cyclotron, rocket, eight-inch telescope, and a gas laser. The members of the club's four committees are confronted with such problems as a suitable fuel to propel the rocket, mirrors for the telescope, and a continuous wave laser for communication, helography, and time lapse experiments, as well as the major problem of finding a place to put the cyclotron.

Officers David Lyon, Richard Epstein, Louis Lessem, and Doug Ruisaard made sure that the B S R P is always moving. Whether examining cyclotrons at the University of Michigan and Michigan State University or visiting the Phoenix Project's atomic reactor, these students are always probing into every facet of the science world to increase their knowledge by actual experience.

Customs Blend as Student Travelers Exchange New Ideas

Each year Berkley participates in the Youth for Understanding and the American Field Service exchange student programs. By sending students abroad in the summer and receiving foreign exchange students for the school year, Berkley does much to promote understanding in today's youth.

Following interviews under the direction of Mrs. Ann Beuerle, ten Berkley students were selected to spend this past summer abroad. Representing the YFU program were Pamela Abrams, Peggy Abrams, Lee Burton, Ken Cohen, Janet Courville, Lynn Herman, Gale Mondry, David Share, and Valerie Smith. Barbara Stern was selected to be Berkley's ambassador on the American Field Service Program. The returning students staged an "International Dating Game" to promote interest in the programs.

This year Berkley is fortunate to have as their foreign exchange students Pirkko Rainio, Ana Carvajal, Stefan Edvardson, Arthur Oostvogel, and Marianne Kristensen. These students participate in sports, choirs, and bands as well as following the daily routine of an American student, while living with their American "families". Through these experiences, the future generations gain a broader sense of world cultures.

UNSG, JCL Develop New Dimensions in Understanding

As one of the largest national student organizations, the Junior Classic League promotes the preservation and exploration of the classics. Perhaps one of the more ambitious projects handled by the Berkley J C L is the publications of "Torch", the Junior League newsletter. Club members find the classic touch in everything from bagel sales to trips to Engineering Institutes and Art Museums. Besides attending local conferences, J C L members also travel to Michigan State University for the National Convention and to the University of Michigan for state conventions.

In addition to participating in activities with the United Nations Government class, the United Nations Study Group creates and executes many of its own projects. Being in the class is not a mandatory requirement for membership in the club, but members of the organization play an important part in carrying home the honors from the model United Nations at the University of Detroit. This year members also joined with the class to present a play to an elementary school. To further their own knowledge of the United Nations. the club welcomes guest speakers to its meetings.

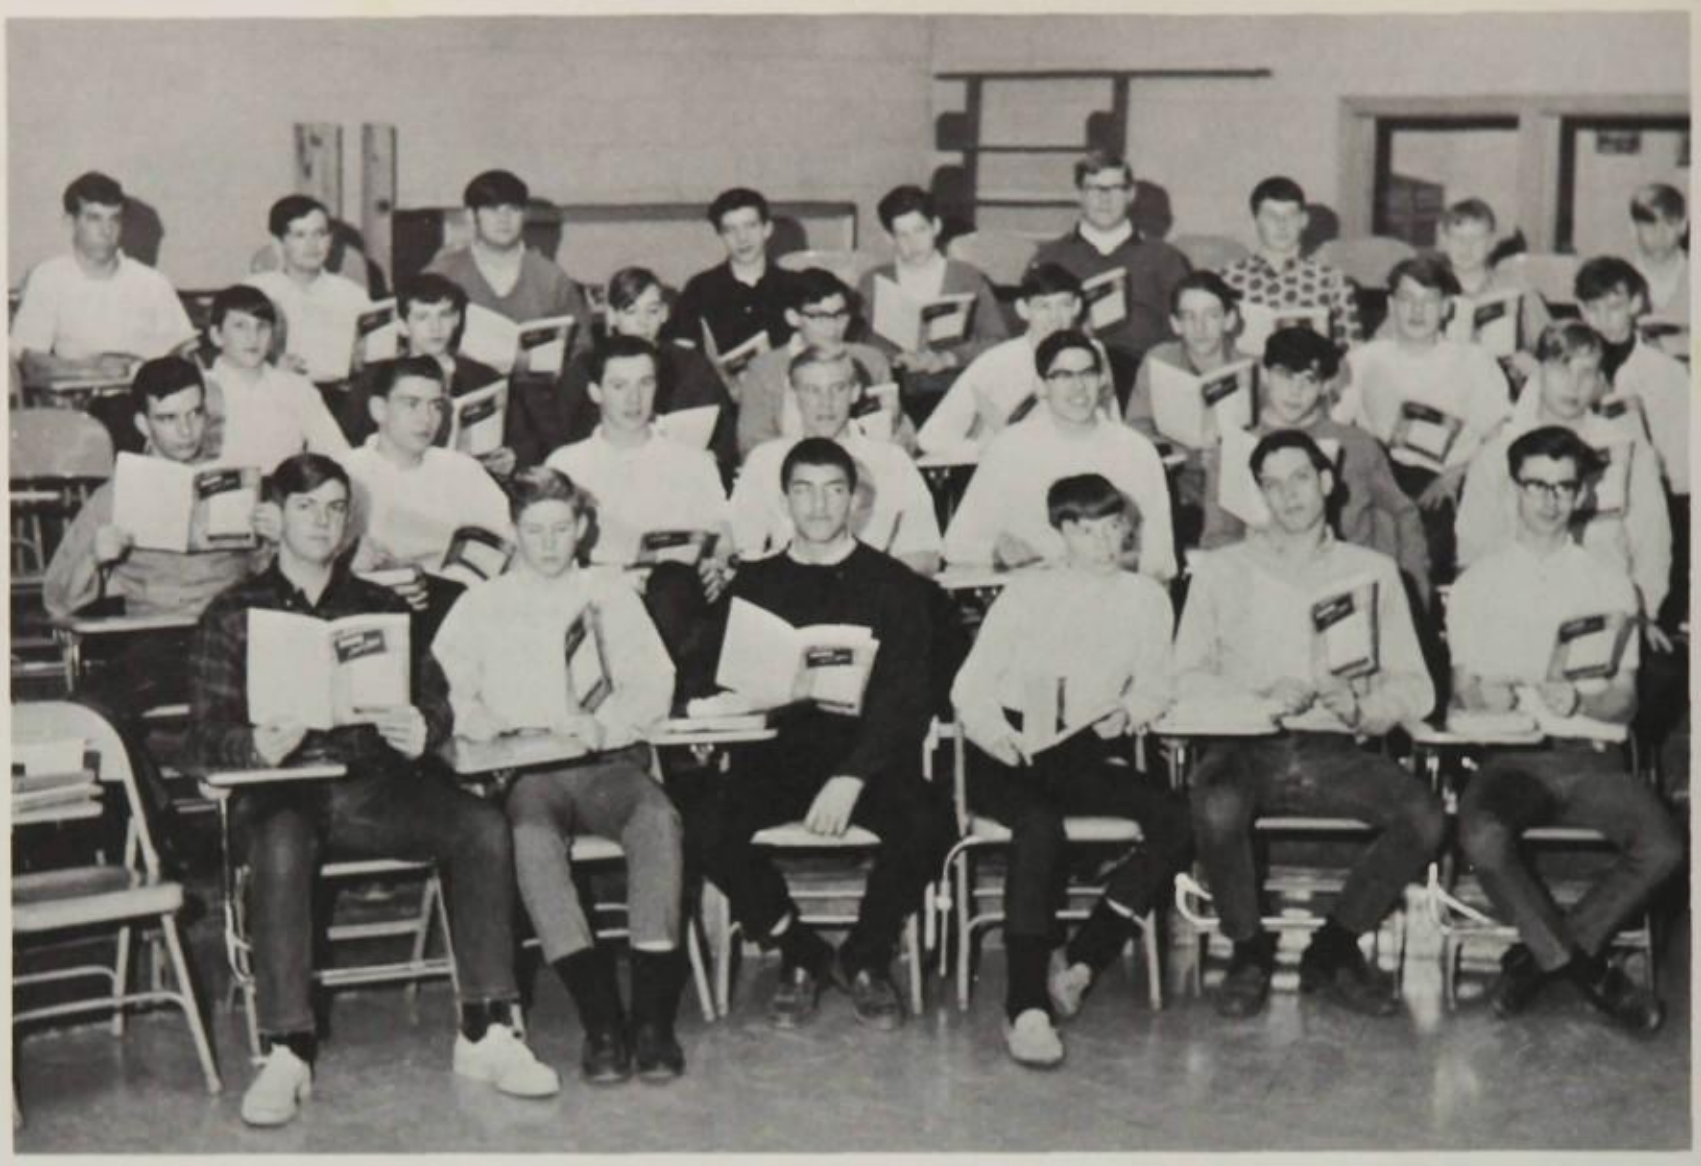
The Trained Voices of the A Cappella Choir Harmonize with Sounds of 1968

"Say it with music, beautiful music" are the familiar lyrics to the well-known theme of the Berkley A Capella Choir. Under the direction of Mr. William DeMaria, the 125 vocalists present their year round repertoire at a Winter concert, a sacred concert in April, the Wayne State concert in May, and at Senior Dedication. The Choir entertained at Northland Center on Thanksgiving and at the Men's Rotary Club. At the "Winter Wonderland" assembly, a novelty song-skit, "Ballad for Americans," and holiday songs were performed.

The members of the A Capella Choir are always busy learning new scores and organizing folk groups such as the Madgrigal group, "Change for a Quarter," and "Vera and Sue." This year the Choir officers are Bob Schultz, Sean McKenzie, Nancy Goode, Terry Rautio, and Beth Macaulay.

In class, the A Capella Choir saw the movie "Showboat" in three parts and acted out the Scandinavian Christmas ritual "Santa Lucia" with the assistance of Danish exchange student Kris Kristenson. Whether performing on stage before a receptive audience or learning in class from their respected leader, the A Capella Choir remains one of Berkley's most accomplished organizations.



Choir Room Resounds with the Sound of Music

Lynn Fuller and Mr.DeMaria nod in approval as Hank Schade demonstrates the talent required in an accompianist for the A Capella and B Choir.

Taking advantage of the many gifted individuals that are found at Berkley, the B Choir helps develop well trained and harmonious voices. The B Choir is composed of students who have capable voices but are not yet ready for the A Cappella Choir. Members usually regard admittance into the B Choir as an intermediate step in achieving final success in the A Cappella Choir. Members of B Choir have proven their ability in their appearances with the A Cappella Choir at their annual concerts. Consisting of seniors, juniors, and sophomores, the choir has a vast variety of sounds and songs attributing to its success during the 1968 year.

The Boys and Girls Glee Clubs give sophomores a chance to be introduced into the rigid choir program at Berkley. By alternating regularly between Glee Club and physical education classes the students learn the fundamental techniques involved in singing in unison. All the members of the Boys and Girls Glee Clubs are versed in the important study areas such as harmonizing, note reading, and voice projection. The sophomores in the Glee Clubs are able to exhibit what they have learned in class at the Christmas concert. Through Berkley's progressive system, it was only natural that the A Cappella Choir attained the recognition it deserved this year.

Musicians Find Opportunities in Varied Bands

Of the many qualities which Berkley possesses, fine music is certainly one of them. Throughout the year the Pep, Marching, Varsity, and Concert bands display talent in each of their specific fields of music. The Pep band is possibly the most well known for its versatile capabilities in rousing spirit within the school. Dressed in way-out clothes, the Pep band entertains at various assemblies and basketball games. The Marching band, like the Pep band, is another ingredient behind Berkley's spirit and enthusiasm. Under the direction of Mr. Walter Mison, the band marched at Berkley football games. the Thanksgiving Day parade in Detroit, and Northland Shopping Center where they put on a successful exhibition.

The Varsity Band, Berkley's intermediate group of musicians, performs at the Winter and Spring Concerts and annually promotes many of its members to the concert Band. Students of all ages may play in the Varsity Band if they qualify, and the experience gained is usually fundamental for anyone interested in a band career. Of all the school's bands, the Concert Band is the most accomplished in terms of musical ability and presentation. At the Spring and Winter Concerts talented members of the Concert Band produce a harmonizing and truly entertaining sound. As is constantly evident, Berkley High School is indebted to Mr. Walter Mison and his talented musicians

Staff Members Use Ingenuity to Create '68 Bear Tracks

Each year the annual staff is confronted with the problem of producing a representative yearbook. Under the direction of Mr. Mark Eichner and co-editors Lynn Herman and Irene Kupfer, the twenty-six member staff works diligently to create an informative and interesting yearbook.

This past summer, Nancy Keegan and Irene Kupfer attended a yearbook workshop at the University of Detroit. Here the representatives from area schools discussed the methods of producing a successful composite of school activities. The complete organization of the staff and the format of the book were taught in detail to the participants.

The students of this year's staff are divided into nine sections to aid in the best possible coverage of all aspects of school life. The involvement of the students in the school, including academic and extra-curricular activities, supplies the copy needed to compose a successful annual. Cropping pictures, writing headlines, and assembling layouts are only a few of the many techniques used by the staff members. This year Beartracks '68 is the final proof that once again the staff has triumphed in creating the complete picture of Berkley.

Creative Minds Find Areas for Expression in Writing, Art, Music

Interested in discovering new ways to express their varied interests, Berkley students turn to the Creative Writing Club, Folk Society, and Art Club, to find success in these areas.

Foremost in the Creative Writing Club's activities is the production of Patterns, Berkley's literary magazine. Besides joining with the Drama Club to see plays, this year's highlight was former teacher Mrs. Melba Marlett's speech.

The Art Club was very busy traveling to many cultural places in the Detroit area. Around school, the members painted bulletin boards and garbage cans. The annual Art Exhibit and Sale gave students a chance to display their work.

Take an old lyric, a guitar, a group of people, and the Folk Society is ready to present itself as the voice of the new generation. Its seminars included discussions on folk music and folk stylists. Special features this year were a January Hootenany and a visit from the noted performer Martin K. Bell.

BHS Actors Become Proficient in Assumed Identities

With New York's Broadway the ever pressing goal of Berkley Drama Club members, the star-struck amateurs continue to absorb all the knowledge of theatrical techniques that are at their disposal. With the guidance of officers Steve Davies, Laura Sacks, Cathy Courtney, and Jim Lang, the participants put on one-act sketches throughout the year. Make-up and costuming seminars and ushering at the Bonstelle Theater promote the interest of members in backstage techniques.

The fairytale Pinocchio is this year's children's play presented ten to twelve times at the elementary schools to support their three University scholarships. This fall, under Mrs. Margaret McQuaid and Mr. Duane Thompson's coaching, thespians presented Arthur Miller's acclaimed play The Crucible. Laura Levine, Steve Davies, Judy Krieger, Alan Blender, and Scott Jones were the lauded stars of the production based on the Salem witch trials. Berkley audiences raved about the spring play The Tender Trap, a whimsical comedy by Max Shulman and Robert Paul Smith.

Individuals Express Themselves

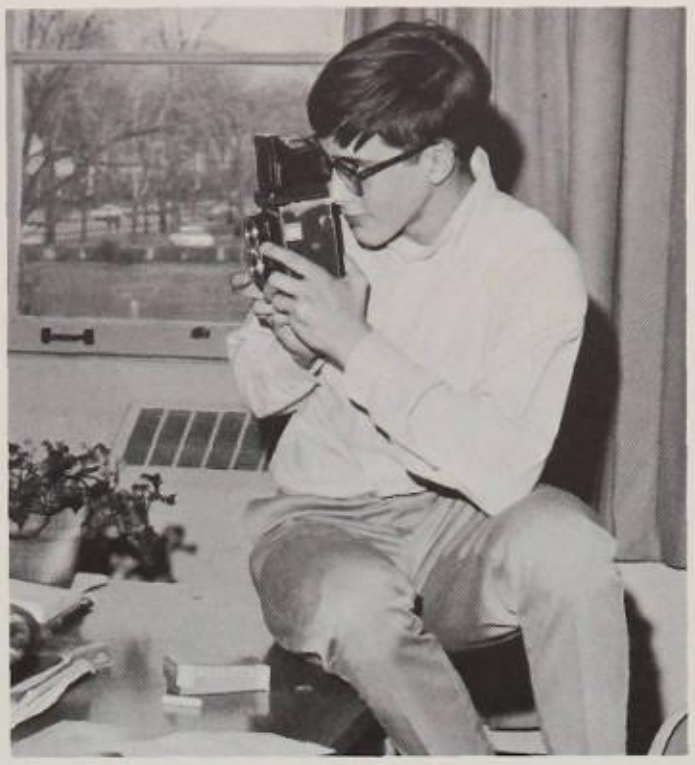
High school students have always enjoyed persuasive arguments on controversial subjects. The Debate Club, an informal group this year instead of a class, was divided into Varsity and Junior Varsity groups of affirmative and negative teams. The sponsors of the Debate Club, Miss Mary Jo Maples and Mr. Barry Lepler, arranged debates on criminal inquiry for the Lansing tournament.

If it is true that a picture is worth a thousand words, then the Berkley Camera Club is one of the school's most valuable organizations. The club exercises its ability in both theory and practice. Through field trips to advertising agencies and informal classes, the club achieved its purpose of developing school photographers.



Clubs Create Occasions for Future Teachers and Nurses to Experiment with Careers

The Future Teachers of America and the Medical Careers Club are just two examples of how organizations at Berkley give students an opportunity to experiment with a career.

The cadet teaching program gives "future teachers" a chance to observe a classroom and possibly instruct it. Other activities include trips to colleges throughout Michigan and an exchange trip where members of F.T.A. spend a weekend with F.T.A. members from Gladwin, Michigan. By visiting the Gladwin F.T.A., students gain a broader idea of what school life in a rural area is like. Doing their part the Berkley F.T.A. entertains Gladwin for a weekend.

The Medical Club offers opportunities to its members to better their skills by visiting various institutions, such as the University of Michigan Hospital. Many of the members serve as participants in first aid courses. Medical Careers Club members also have an "adopted grandmother" whom they visit during the holidays. It is through such experiences that clubs examine professions.

Biology Enthusiasts Stage Successful Outings

With nature beckoning, the Berkley High Biology Club members venture into the outdoors to investigate all scientific possibilities. On their first weekend trip to Chicago, the participants were able to see the Museum of Science and Industry and the Adler Planetarium. The year-round excursions, such as trips to Michigan colleges and bicyle outings at Franklin Cider Mill, were just minor events compared to the highlight of the year - five days at Waterloo Recreation Area. Only forty-five selected members were allowed to participate in the initiation swamp trip and the building of a park facility. The Biology Club Field Research program, under Miss Mary Jo Maples' supervision, was always probing into nature. Sponsor, Mr. Phil Hawarny made sure that club excursions heightened the interest of all members in the science world and provided an active and stimulating year.

Horses and Rifles Trigger Reaction from Hobbyists

Since time began, men and weapons have been inseparable. Today, however, the necessity for protecting the womenfolk from Indians and ferocious animals has somewhat lessened, but the desire to be skillful with a rifle is still prevalent. Every Monday night the Berkley Rifle Club meets at the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club from 7:00 P.M. to 9:00 P.M. This relatively small club is sponsored by Mr. Henry Wiegand and headed by Jim Brichta. The members shoot at paper targets for awards which are divided into classes of pro marksman, marksman first class, sharpshooter, expert, and distinguished expert. The expert class has been reached for the first time by senior Jim Brichta.

Each Wednesday, the Horseback Riding Club from Berkley invades the corrals of Double D Stables in Pontiac. Soon the air is filled with shouts of "Giddyup" and "Whoa". Comprising one of the more active clubs at Berkley, the horse-minded members are certainly always on the go. Besides sponsoring weekly excursions, the Riding Club also provides students with an annual hayride and weekend pack trips in the spring.

Alpine Fever Beckons Skiers to Mt. Holly

Following the Berkley tradition, students love to participate in all the "in" events. For the past few years, winter skiing has been considered the sport. Whether a novice or a pro, snowplower or parallel master, all Berkley Ski Club members get into the weekly trend of rushing up to Mt. Holly Ski Lodge. A forty-five minute bus ride allows students to enjoy the slopes from 4:30 P.M. to 8:30 P.M.

At the beginning of February, some thirty members of the Ski Club took the long bus trip up to northern Michigan to the legendary Boyne Mountain and Boyne Highland Ski Resorts. Lodging at the Cliff Dweller's Motel, the students trayed down Boyne's beginning slope as well as played pool and pinball at their motel when the tows were closed. Ski Club officers planned an early winter dance featuring "The Endless Chain" which was one of the most successful dances of the year.

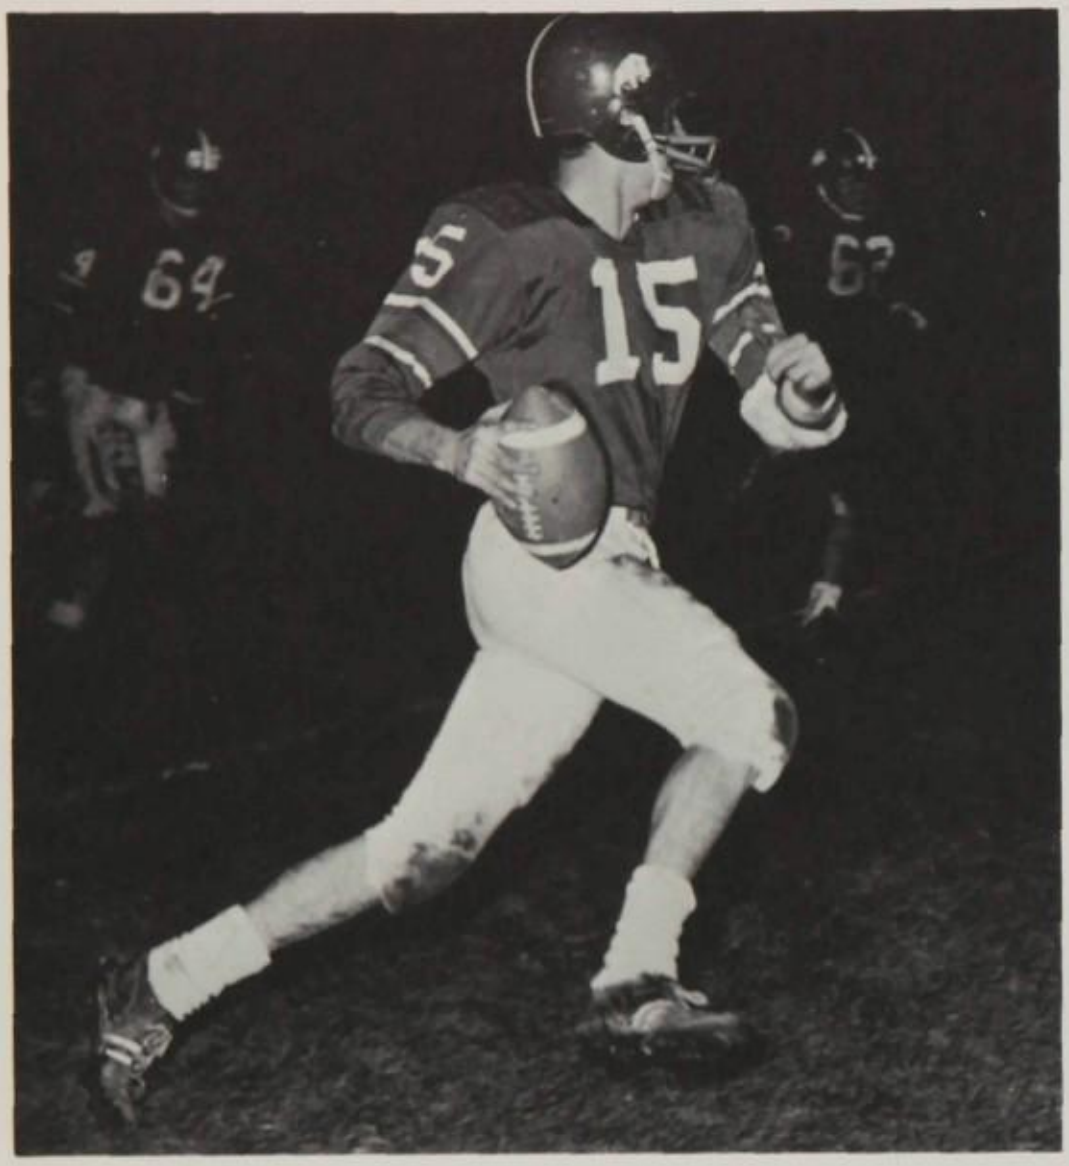
Bears Arouse School Spirit through Inspired Turf Efforts



The 1967 Berkley High School football team, frustrated by numerous bad breaks, finished the season with a disappointing record. Despite this fact the Bears provided much excitement for Berkley's ardent fans. Many of the losses resulted from mental letdowns or from last second heroics by the opposition. Coach Hugh Wilson can reflect with pride on the efforts of the entire squad.

This year's team produced some outstanding individual performers. End John Parker, defensive back Cal Butterworth, and center Jim Mecoli gained all-conference berths. All-league honorable mentions included seniors Ian Redpath, Brian MacMartin, Greg Clugston, and Gary Canty and junior Dennis Schade. These players were instrumental in giving the opposing teams problems on the gridiron. Some of these individuals may represent colleges in their future football endeavors.

The outlook for next year is bright for Berkley, as many juniors received playing opportunities this season. Coach Wilson is confident that the Bears' den will regain its former football prowess in future years. He and his coaching staff will work diligently to make this hope a reality. The future students of Berkley High School can look ahead to a promising year, when once again moments of glory will be regained.

J.V. Gridders Show Determination and Gain Experience

Berkley High School's junior varsity football team produced many outstanding moments and excellent varsity prospects in 1967. The Bears ended the season with a 2-6 won-lost record but most of their losses were by a single touchdown. Coaches Ken Barna and Lynn Holly have developed a promising squad which will aid the varsity in future years.

Varsity coach Hugh Wilson is anxiously awaiting some fine talent for 1968. The junior varsity received excellent performances from both sophomores and juniors. Art Watson, Glenn Downie, Dan Decker, Bill Sanders, and Jim Karshner were the top sophomores. Most talented juniors include Tim Kemp, Ken Cohen, and Les Levine. These individuals hope to give the Berkley football scene a bright new look.

Coaches Lynn Holly and Ken Barna deserve much credit for their efforts. They had the responsibility of producing the players that will make the varsity a success in the coming years. Without their hard work the younger players would be unable to gain the valuable experience needed for varisty competition. Berkley salutes the coaches and the entire junior varsity squad.

Harriers Sprint to Important Victories in Grueling Meets

The 1967 Cross Country team finished the year with a 3-6 overall record and were fifth in the S M A Coach Neil Jordan felt that the players turned in fine performances throughout the season. He was especially encouraged by the turnout of many sophomores for the squad.

Junior Dave Mills was Berkley's finest harrier of 1967. He finished sixth in the conference meet and repeatedly led the Bears across the tape in dual meets. Co-captain Jim Crosby and Rick Pape were Berkley's other top performers this season. Fred Hillard, co-captain, senior Rick Fulton, and junior Steve Hargreaves deserve much credit for their work.

The returning lettermen are extremely optimistic about the chances for a fine season in 1968. Coach Jordan is hopeful that next year will continue the development of last year, and that successes will result.

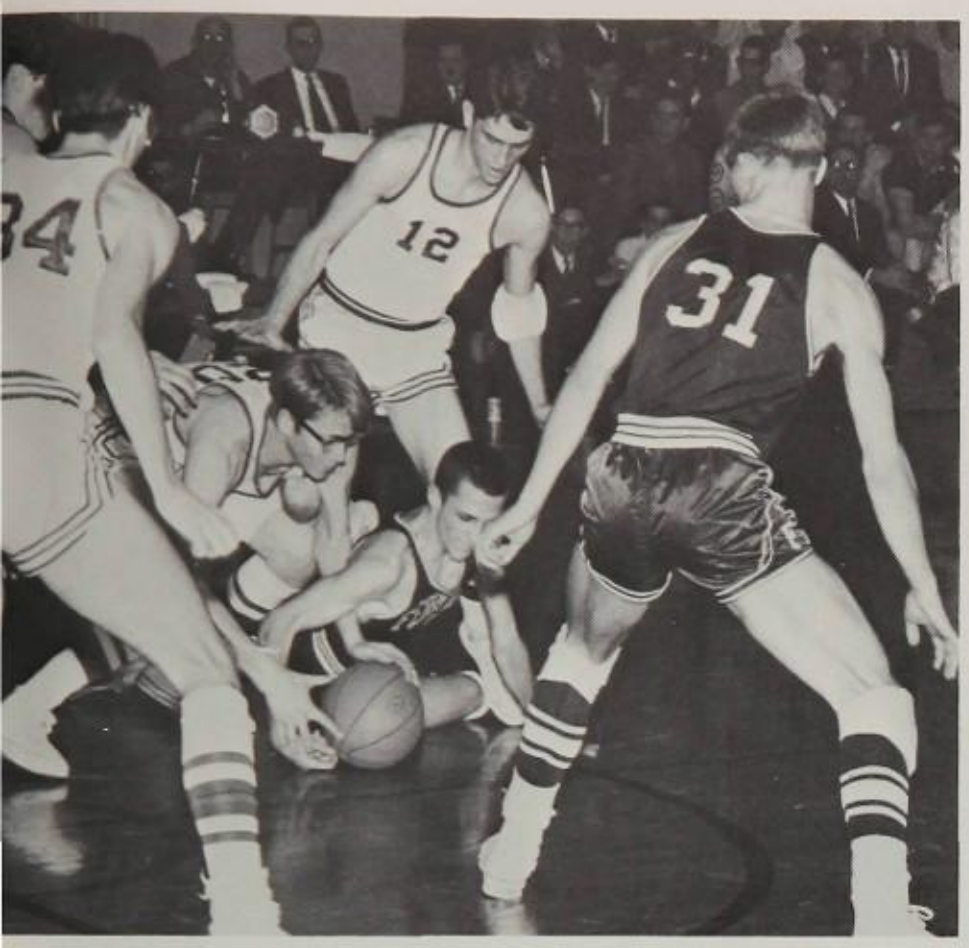
Overcome Handicaps to Demonstrate Basketball Finesse



Excitement, tension, and enjoyment are the three main components of a basketball season. The Berkley High varsity certainly produced all three in 1968. The Bears compiled a 7-10 overall record but three of the losses were by a single point. The squad finished tied for fourth place in the always rugged S M A league.

Berkley had three truly outstanding court performers this season. Seniors Steve Pyykkonen and Dick (Pee Wee) Robinson and junior John Benning were three of the best players in the league. Pyykkonen and Robinson averaged fifteen points a game and Benning over thirteen points a contest. The Bears suffered many injuries and problems this season. Highly regarded guard Rick Butrynski sustained a knee injury and didn't see any game action. Captain Steve Grant also missed most of the year with a dislocated arm. This fact left opportunities for other individuals to play and improve. Juniors Randy Hopkins, Jim McIntyre, and Tom Pheister and seniors Greg Clugston and Don Coon performed extremely well under pressure.

Coach Ace Zographos can take pride in the Bears' efforts despite recurring problems. They were excellent representatives of Berkley's athletic program.

Bears Duplicate Former Court Successes in Strenuous

The 1968 junior varsity basketball team continued to demonstrate the excellent brand of basketball displayed in past seasons. The squad finished with a highly respectable 9-5 overall mark. The team also ended in third place in the SMA with a 6-4 record. All of Berkley's outstanding basketball players past and present have come from the junior varsity and this group is certainly no exception.

The Bears had two very promising guards who led the team to victory this year. Larry Fulton and Larry Jackson gave the fans a bright look at the future with many fine performances. Jackson was the team's leading scorer and Fulton was the playmaker and the best all-around court man. Forward Stu Ross, another sophomore, improved rapidly and averaged in double figures all season. These three individuals will definitely add depth to next year's varsity squad. Other players who aided the team's success include Bill Placeway, Bill Duncan, Bill Sanders, and Jim Karshner.

Mr. Steve Rhoads can be credited with an excellent job in his first year as junior varsity coach. He exhibited poise and used outstanding strategy in victory and defeat, and also molded a fine squad in aiding the progress of all his players tremendously. Varsity coach Ace Zographos is eagerly awaiting these fine prospects to perform for Berkley next year. All the Berkley fans feel that this combination of talent and coaching will bring BHS the SMA championship in 1969.

Predicted Mat Brilliance

The wrestling team has put a definite accent on youth in 1968. The Bears had nine underclassmen wrestling in the twelve varsity weight class divisions, which gave Berkley one of the youngest teams in the area, and certainly one of the most promising. The squad finished with a 5-7 mat record and was ranked fifth in the tough S M A league.

There were many fine contributors to this year's squad but a few individuals stand out most prominently. Junior Doug Willer, who wrestled in the 120 pound class, was chosen All-Conference and captured the Trenton Quadrangular Championship. Following in the footsteps of his brother, Jim Willer will make a great bid for All-State next season. Dennis White, another junior, was Berkley's other winner in the Trenton Quadrangular and displayed great mat skill all year. The remaining wrestlers who contributed most to the team's success include sophmores Bruce Hass and Gary Twomey, juniors Tim Kemp and Jim Hamilton, and seniors Ray Feeser, Don Smith, and Rich Henrion.

Varsity coach Robert Finley and his assistant Mr. Ken Barna have worked diligently with the boys throughout the season. They are hoping, as is the school, for a tremendous year in 1969. It is evident that if Berkley's young wrestlers continue to improve, this goal will certainly be attained.

Bowlers Find Foes in Gutter; Golfers Tee-Off to Victories

The bowling team is a vital part of the overall Berkley sports program. The squad, sponsored by Mr. Paul Griffith, competes once a week against other teams in the area. Members of this year's team are captain Bill Verla, Morris Brown, Elliot Mazur, Pat Maher, Nick Roy, Dave Reid, and Neal Sweet. The squad finished second in the S.O.C. last year and will certainly continue their fine performances in the future.

The golf team completed a very successful season in 1967. The Bears compiled an impressive 10-4 won-lost record this year. Coach Jim Brown's squad displayed much skill on the Franklin Hills Course.

Steve Presser was named All-Conference for the second consecutive year and was Berkley's finest linkster. Other outstanding golfers include seniors Jim Blugerman, Jerry Becker, Mike Clarke, and Norm Newton. Juniors who contributed to the squad's success were Bob Ervasti and Dave Seyburn. The team is hoping to improve its performance in the regional and state tournament in future years. With many returning lettermen Berkley can expect more success in golf for next season.

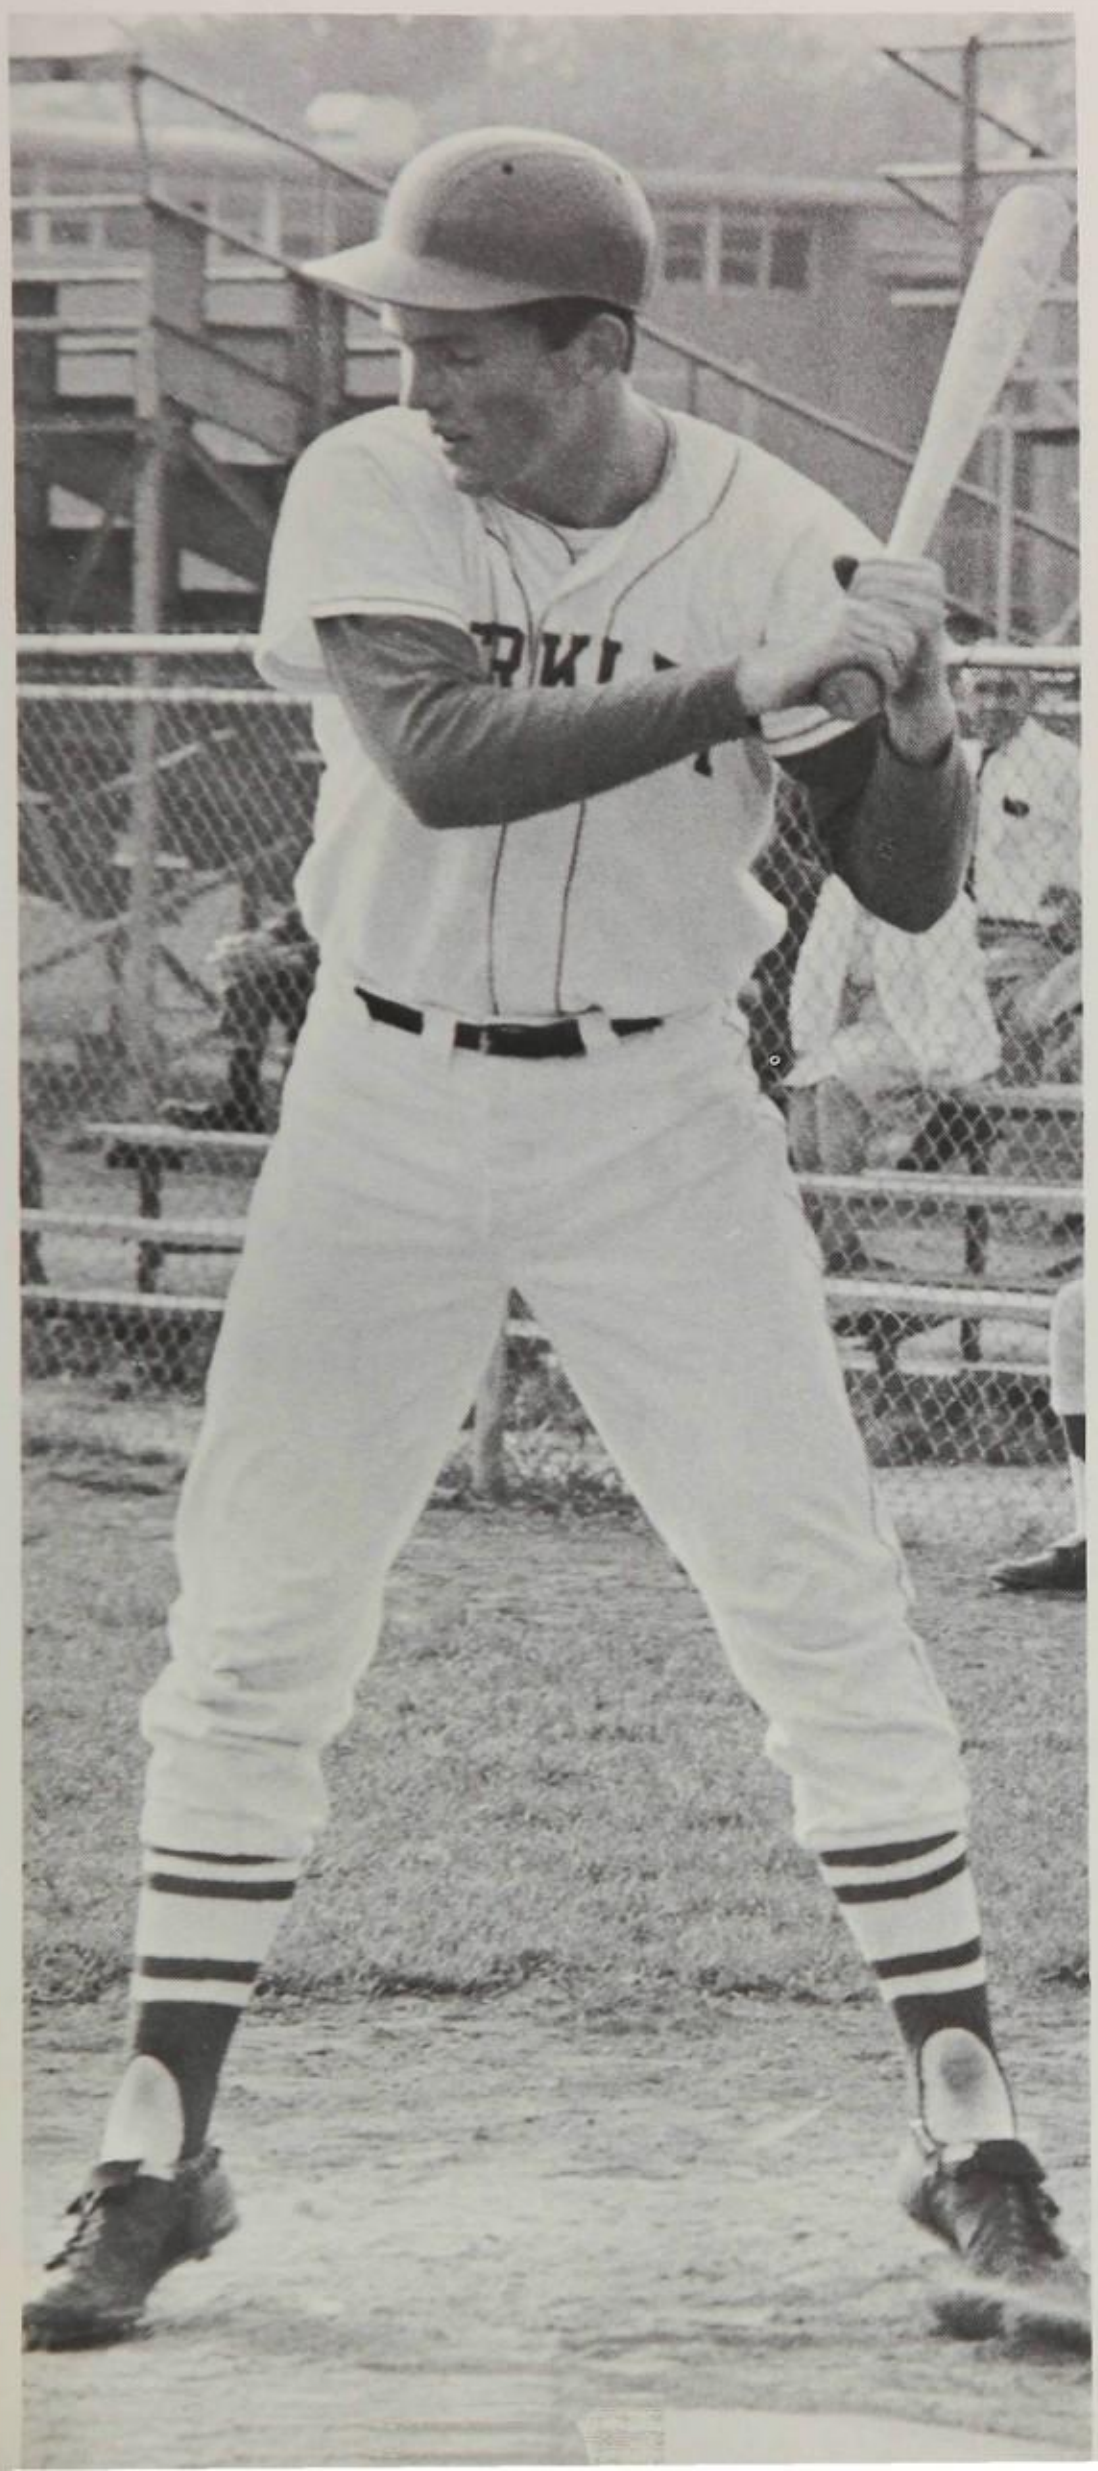
Bears Display Outstanding Strategy in Diamond Contests



The 1967 Berkley High School baseball team played well consistently throughout the season. The Bears finished with a respectable 6-6 overall record and a 5-5 league mark. Their achievements showed much improvement over last year's dismal season. Coach Don Lesher was pleased with squad's development and progress.

Pitcher Randy Sharp and outfielder Jim Gerard were named to the All-S.M.A. team. Sharp had a 4-1 won-lost record and batted .375. Gerard hit .288 and was an outstanding defensive player. Other leading hitters included All-Conference Honorable Mention Mike Berg at .390, Roy Downey at .320, and Ron Kirkwood at .290. Other individuals who contributed to the team's success were captain Larry Duncan, Mike McWain, and John Parker. Many of these players have hopes of continuing their baseball careers on a college or professional level.

Coach Lesher is anxiously awaiting next year when many fine prospects from the Junior Varsity will join his ranks. Berkley shares his optimism and is expecting more success.

The tennis team has made many fine contributions to the athletic program at Berkley. In 1967 it won the first regional championship in school history by defeating eleven other schools in competition at Kimball High School. The Bears also retained the S.M.A. conference title while winning all dual meets.

Seniors Bob Johnson and Rob Roth combined for the regional doubles title and junior Tim Marks captured the singles honor. These individuals turned in excellent performances all season. Seniors Paul Moore and Harvey Mallin also played important roles in the squad's success.

Mr. Phil Hawarny, in his first year as head coach, deserves much credit for guiding the team to its finest season. His enthusiasm for his position inspired the netters to many outstanding efforts. He, as well as the returning lettermen, possess high hopes for the success of next year's squad.

in Individual Events

The Berkley High School track team improved greatly during the 1967 season. Coach Neil Jordan was satisfied with the squad's success. The Bears finished third in the S.M.A. with an outstanding performance in the league conference meet.

Senior sprinters Robert Bork and Ian Redpath were brilliant throughout the season. Both recorded times of 9.9 seconds in the one-hundred yard dash and also gained all-conference honors. Hurdler Don Wishon was named to the all-league team for his efforts in the hurdles. Jim Gillespie and Dennis Schade also gained all-conference honors through their work on the 880 yard relay team. Other performers who contributed much to the team's success were Cal Butterworth, Steve Dresner, and Rick Cain.

COMMENCEMENT

Graduation... this special, looked-forward-to-day, marks the end of an era for you. Yet, it's also the commencement of new, often unknown horizons. For some, it means going on to higher educational levels, for others, the time to seek employment. As one of the largest electric and gas utilities in the United States, Consumers Power Company offers a wide variety of job opportunities. We are always looking for qualified personnel...the well-known "voice with a smile" to give our customers help and information—bright, outgoing, responsible persons to explain our many services—clerks and typists—outdoor jobs, planning and installing gas and electric service, reading meters, driving trucks—etc.

Care to join us? If you do, please get in touch with our Division office in your city.

Did you ever try talking to a computer?

Computers are wonderful machines. Here at the National Bank of Detroit computers sort, process, and do all the record-keeping for a million or more checks a day. We couldn't get along without them.

But our customers don't want to talk to a computer. To them, a bank is people . . . people who take a personal interest in them and their banking needs.

Actually, we employ more people today than we did before automation. We need them to teach the machines and to develop new and better ways of doing things. We need them to give our customers personalized banking service. Although machines do much of the drudgery, people—with training, knowledge, and judgment—are needed now more than ever.

That is why we urge you to get all the education you can. The future is bright for responsible people who have prepared themselves for it.
